IMPORTANT WAR NEWS.

The Position and Intentions of the Rebels in Maryland.

PROBABLE VISIT TO PENNSYLVANIA

One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Across the Potomac.

Immense Bodies of National Troops on the Move.

Gen. McClellan in the Field in Person.

Rumors of Skirmishing in the Vicinity of Poolesville.

A GREAT BATTLE SOON TO BE FOUGHT.

ACCOUNTS RECEIVED IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Sept. 7—Afternoon.

The intelligence received here last night, and additionally confirmed this morning, of the occupation of Frederick City, Maryland, by the rebel forces naturally excited much surprise, mingled with indignation and alarm.

Frederick is about sixty miles from Baltimore by the railroad line, and forty overland from Washington, by way of Rockville, Darnestown and Poolesville, Md.

There are but limited opportunities here of obtaining information from that point, almost all the intelligence coming by the way of Baltimore.

The Government authorities received the news early yesterday evening in a written documentary form. During last night immense bodies of our troops were in motion for the Upper Potomac and elsewhere, and to-day the military operations continue.

Nearly all the rebel troops have apparently been withdrawn from our front. Certainly now no large force remains.

The next movement of the rebels is a matter of conjecture, but precautions have been taken to guard in advance against possible damages by them. There is no doubt that large reinforcements of rebels were yesterday passing from Ashby's Gap, south of Leesburgh, as if intending to cross at Snicker's Ferry, which is between the Point of Rocks and Edward's Ferry. The rebels move in solid column—first, cavalry; next, artillery; then infantry, with their baggage in the rear. And these again are followed in the same order by similar descriptions of troops.

The people of the Valley have contributed to the subsistence of the rebels, and doubtless furnished them with all needful information.

Nothing has yet been heard from our troops at Harper's Ferry and Martinsburg, who are cut off from reinforcements by the movement of the rebels towards Frederick.

A gentleman who arrived here to-day, having left Frederick between 9 and 10 o'clock last night, on horseback, says that the rebel force there is estimated at 40,000 men, under Stonewall JACKSON. From this gentleman's conversation with rebel soldiers, he derived the impression that one of their objects is to destroy the Western Central (Pennsylvania) Railroad, and otherwise operate in that State, and having ulterior designs on Washington and Baltimore.

Our informant was glad to leave the neighborhood of Frederick, without caring to remain long to verify his data.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Sept. 8.

An escaped prisoner, who was in the hands of the rebels four days, says that all of the National forces at Frederick had fallen back to Harper's Ferry, but before doing so last, Thursday night, burnt the hospital and commissary stores and removed the sick and wounded. Friday afternoon the rebel pickets extended out as far as New-Market, eight miles southeast of Frederick. The National pickets were withdrawn sixteen miles of the same place. The rebels had got possession of only two or three cars at Frederick, some of which were loaded with old pontoon bridges.

A paroled prisoner, who arrived here to-day, reports that about 150,000 rebels have passed into Maryland—the main body of them over the Monocacy. He had passed through the lines and counted twenty-seven batteries. This statement is believed among military men in this city.

On Friday thirty of the First Massachusetts Cavalry were taken prisoners and paroled, on the Upper Potomac.

A report received here to-day that early this morning there was a skirmish in the neighborhood of Poolesville. To-day many of the citizens of that neighborhood have come to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. Monday, 8—P. M.

Two refugees from Leesburg came into our lines yesterday near Poolesville, and were brought before the Provost Marshal in that city. One of them, an Englishman, left Leesburg on Saturday night, and crossed the river at Nolan's Ferry, along with the wagon train of LONGSTREET's corps. He estimated LONGSTREET's force at 40,000, though it is claimed by rebel officers to be 50,000. The crossing was effected at midnight, and without opposition. He counted forty-eight pieces of artillery, principally rifled, in LONGSTREET's corps, and was informed that an equal number of field-pieces had been sent on ahead.

JACKSON crossed at the same ferry, on Saturday night, with a large force. The rebels boast that during Thursday and Friday nights at least 60,000 men and 300 pieces of artillery were crossed into Maryland.

Gen. HILL's force passed through Leesburgh on Thursday, toward Harper's Ferry. His force is said to be 25,000 men.

The rebels are wretchedly clad, and generally destitute of shoes. The cavalry men are mostly barefoot, and the feet of the infantry are bound up in rags and pieces of rawhide. Their artillery is in tolerable order, and many are without hats or caps. They are very sanguine of success, and say that when they get to Baltimore they will get everything they need. They have very few tents, the men mostly, when encamped, sleeping on the bare ground.

The bridge over the canal at Nolan's Ferry was burned on Thursday night by our troops before they left. The rebels let the water out of the canal, and thus easily got over.

From the National Intelligencer of Yesterday.

The Confederates, inspirited by their late successes in Virginia, seem resolved to wage an offensive instead of a defensive war, and with this object in view they have hastened to cross the Potomac River, and already have a large army in the State of Maryland. They crossed the river, it appears, both below and above the Point of Rocks, in the course of Friday night and Saturday morning, and immediately proceeded inland.

A number of troops have been dispatched from this city towards Frederick in order to meet the enemy. They were followed by Major-Gen. McCLELLAN, who left here last evening, at 6½ o'clock, for the same neighborhood.

It is understood that he has, with the approval of the President, placed Major-Gen. BANKS in command of the forces retained in this vicinity for the defence of this city. The judiciousness of this appointment will be appreciated not only by the people of Washington, but by the country at large. Gen. BANKS has been suffering recently from an injury received in action, but happily is now convalescent.

THE MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.

The Washington National Republican of yesterday morning says:

"During the last two days, large bodies of troops have been on the move in various directions. We cannot say how large. We shall not be surprised to hear of a heavy battle in a few days, and we think it will be a decisive one. But we will not speculate."

The National Intelligencer also publishes the following in its local columns:

"Last Saturday night seemed to be a gala night among our troops, especially among the new levies who, having orders to march, were enthusiastic as they proceeded through the streets, making the night air resound with their cheers. Later in the night came the solid, heavy tread of the veteran corps Fawns under Franklin, followed closely by the respective corps of SUMNER and HOOKER, (late McDOWELL's.) They were less jubilant, but undaunted. We noticed in Gen. McCALL's Division of Reserves, no doubt the result of heavy marching and fatigue duty, many of the brave fellows tagged out and worn down."

REPORTS RECEIVED IN BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Monday, Sept. 8.

Nothing further has reached here of the movements of the rebels in Maryland. There are many rumors; among them that the rebels are gathering in some place near Westminster, twenty-two miles from Baltimore. Some officers who have come thither express the opinion that the rebels design moving on Baltimore. Accounts from Frederick show that the rebels, instead of paying United States notes for what they took, gave worthless southern money.

Messrs. TYLER and STEREN, Union men, and A. J. DELAHAY, a secesh, had their stocks of boots and shoes cleaned out, receiving in payment Confederate notes. Dr. JAMES, the Postmaster, took away the mails and all the Government funds before the enemy entered there.

WAR MEASURES IN MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, Monday, Sept. 8.

Gov. BRADFORD has issued a proclamation calling on the citizens to organize for the protection of the State.

PREPARATIONS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, Sept. 8.

Gen. ANDREW POSTER arrived here this morning, for the purpose, it is supposed, of conferring with the Governor as to the best means of checking the enemy in the threatened raid into this State. Everything that looks to the attainment of this most desirable object, and that is possible under the circumstances, is being done. The rebels are said to be entering Pennsylvania in force near Hanover, with the intention, no doubt, of destroying the Northern Central Railroad.

The rumor of their advance upon Hagerstown appears to be unfounded, as no rebels have as yet made their appearance in that vicinity. It is generally believed, however, that they will shortly advance upon that town.

Arms are being rapidly distributed throughout the counties on our southern border.

Gen. FOX passed through on his way West this afternoon.

OUR HARRISBURGH CORRESPONDENCE.

HARRISBURGH, Monday Afternoon, Sept. 8, 1862.

The country here is all in arms. I came through this morning from Baltimore, and at almost every station were heard the din of preparation. To say that a panic prevails is not to speak an untruth. At Gettysburgh, Penn., last night, all the people were awakened about midnight by a report that the rebel cavalry were close on the village. Preparations are being made here to send rapidly forward to Chambersburgh and other points in the Cumberland Valley, all the troops forwarded to this point. Hundreds of fugitives from Frederick and vicinity are arriving between this point and Emmettsburgh. The 600 invalids in the Government hospitals there were sent forward by impressing wagons to Gettysburgh, and thence by rail to York. There are some sad cases among them. One poor fellow who came up on the cars to-day from Hanover Junction has been raving about his two sons who were killed at Culpeper. Lieut. S. GAMBA, the Quartermaster, succeeded in getting away most of the commissary stores, only about $1,000 worth being burned. The Union people in Maryland are very much harassed.

MOVEMENTS OF THE REBELS.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, Sept. 8.

The latest information from the border, received at 6 this evening, says that the rebel pickets were then within twelve miles of Hanover, York County.

The rumor, circulating in Baltimore, that the rebels are at Emmettsburgh and Gettysburgh, is unfounded.

CHAMBERSBURGH, Pa., Monday, Sept. 8—Midnight.

A citizen of this place, who left Gettysburgh at 2 o'clock this afternoon, says he saw a man who reports no enemy between Frederick and that point this morning. Reports from Hagerstown, this evening, stated that the enemy was in force near there. No telegraphic communication with Hagerstown has been had since 9 o'clock. Expect to hear from the operator during the night.

From Our Special Correspondent.

BALTIMORE, MD., Monday Morning, Sept. 8, 1862.

Yesterday was another exciting day for Baltimore, owing to numerous reports in circulation that the rebels were "marching on." Having, through the kindness of the authorities on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, been conducted near to the scene of action, I am enabled to furnish you with some authentic facts concerning the "invasion."

The Confederates crossed the Potomac on Friday, in the vicinity of Nolan's Ferry and Point of Rocks, marching directly for Frederick, without previously having injured the railroad track or telegraph wires—communication thus being kept open on the entire line. The managers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad were enabled to secure, by transferring to one end or other of the road every species of their movable railroad property, not a dollar's worth being lost. A train of commissary stores, destined for Harper's Ferry, and sufficient to feed twenty thousand men for three days, was very fortunately kept back here on Friday, as it would have reached Point of Rocks about the time the enemy were crossing. Having taken possession of Frederick, the National Gen. COOPER's splendid residence, opposite the new Court-house, was chosen for the headquarters of the rebel chief, supposed to be JACKSON, and BRADLEY JOHNSON was proclaimed Provost-marshal of the place. The men immediately visited the various stores, paying for all their purchases, composed mostly of boots and shoes, with "green backs" or specie. Numbers also scattered through the adjacent country in search of horses and beeves, for which they also paid. This remarkable liberality may have been exhibited out of regard to the strong secession element which prevails at Frederick. About ten o'clock Saturday morning they advanced to Monocacy Junction, some three miles this side of Frederick, cut the wires for the first time, seized the operator, and took possession of the magnificent iron bridge, over three hundred feet long, which spans the stream here. It has not yet been destroyed, but doubtless will be when they evacuate. Our few troops stationed here, fell back to Woodstock, where they are endeavoring to make themselves comfortable, being encamped along the track. A telegraphic dispatch received yesterday afternoon, from thirty-six miles up the road, informs us that 800 of the rebel cavalry had worked their way down as far as there. Communication still being uninterrupted on the other end of the road, dispatches were received all day yesterday by the master of transport line here. Passenger cars are run no further that way than Cumberland, though military trains still continue to pass through Martinsburgh and on to Harper's Ferry. As long as this can be done there is no danger of the large force stationed at the place being starved out, as many have feared would be the case now that communication is interrupted with the East. Even should they be entirely cut off, they can forage for some time on the surrounding country, which, owing to the mildness of National rule, has hitherto been untouched. As long as the Maryland Heights can be held, our beleaguered forces there are safe.

Col. VOSE' command of Illinois Cavalry fought the enemy on Friday at Bunker's Hill, ten miles from Martinsburgh to Shippingtown, whipping them, and taking a few prisoners. Bunker's Hill is but a short distance from Smithfield, where seventeen of our cavalry were seized while on picket week before last. Some slight skirmishing has also taken place in the vicinity of Harper's Ferry. A member of the Fourth Maryland Cavalry, stationed there, who arrived here yesterday—footless, hatless, and plucked generally—reports that several of the company were nearly annihilated, one day last week, in a fight among the London Heights with a large force of guerrillas, he, among a very few others, escaping. I am inclined to discredit his story.

Such is the aspect of affairs on the Upper Potomac. What the designs of the enemy are in crossing, is as much a mystery to our military authorities at Washington as to those here, who express themselves completely at a loss to understand the movement. Instead of simply crossing to secure supplies and a diversion of our forces, as some suppose, they have, in my opinion, decided upon one of the four following plans—the cutting off or capturing of our forces at Harper's Ferry by getting in their rear; the invasion of Pennsylvania by way of Hagerstown; a direct march upon Washington, or an attack on Baltimore.

It was difficult for the people to believe on Saturday that the rebels had crossed the Potomac; but when yesterday they came to realize the truth of the fact, and the feasibility of the last-mentioned plan, then it was that the excitement began to prevail. Squads of men were to be seen conversing earnestly on the street-corners, while crowds were gathered in front of the newspaper offices until late at night perusing the telegrams which had been received during the day, and looking eagerly for more. I passed the American building between 10 and 11 in the evening, and numbers were still to be seen scanning the bulletins by the light of the moon. Couriers rode rapidly back and forth with dispatches in their belts; policemen—their force now largely increased—walked their beats more briskly, ready to pounce upon any secesh who might show his hand; church-goers stopped the passer by, to inquire whether any more news had been received during the time of service; groups of gaily-dressed negroes collected on the side-walks, apparently discussing what would be their fate in the event of JEFF's coming. Numerous rumors were set afloat, among which were that Gen. WOOL had been shot; JACKSON was moving on the city with 40,000 men; and SCOTT, who had gone up from Washington on the Maryland side, had repulsed and driven back the whole rebel crew. The excitement became the greatest about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when Gen. WOOL's Chief Aid returned to the Eutaw House—Gen. WOOL's Headquarters—from a reconnoitering expedition on the Baltimore Road, and appeared to be the bearer of unwelcome intelligence. The First Maryland Regiment was called out and drawn up nearly in front of the hotel, and it was whispered around that the militia were to be called out. "But where is your militia?" was the question on every one's lips. Where, indeed! Then it was that the feeling of insecurity burst upon the people in full force. How could it be otherwise when not the first evidence of any preparation to meet the emergency was to be seen? But with all the solicitude there was no wavering apparent among the crowd of Unionists assembled about the hotel. "He will extemporize a militia," said one. "Maryland is loyal, and let us prove it," exclaimed another. "Place arms in the hands of every one of us, and let us fight on our own hook," chimed in a third, with a loud voice, who stood on the steps.

I have made diligent inquiries, to ascertain what would be the chances of an uprising in the city and a successful one, in the event of the rebels approaching. The Police force numbers some three hundred on active duty, are thoroughly loyal, being, in fact, more adjunct to the Secessionists than the Union soldiers. That they would use their clubs lustily, in the case of a from disturbance, no one doubts. One of the Assistant Commissioners remarked in my hearing, to-day, that he wished the Government would place the city under martial law, for a short time, in order that they might be at liberty to administer a drubbing to the Secessionists. The disarming of the rebel sympathizers has been nearly completed, while, on the other hand, large numbers of arms have been deposited at various points, to be distributed to known Unionists, whenever a demonstration occurs. The city can be shelled effectually either from the Fort or Federal Hill. There are also six of Commodore PEARSE's mortar-boats lying along side of the city. Should any shelling take place, the wealthy and aristocratic portion of the city in the neighborhood of Washington Monument should undoubtedly receive the first dose of soothing pills. I know of no better antidote for the virulent secession epidemic which prevails there, than Dr. PEARSE has been sent to administer in this case.

Gens. FOX and McDOWELL passed through here last night on the 7½ o'clock train. The former, who is relieved of his command and en route for St. Louis, looked exceedingly depressed and care-worn. Was dressed in plain black, with no rich trappings, wore a felt hat, having the brim turned down, and carried a valise. I cannot yet believe that he will disappoint the expectations of his admirers, but that once more in the unprovided West, he will give renewed evidence of that military genius which has heretofore been ascribed to him.

Soldiers are arriving very rapidly. The One Hundred and Twenty-eighth New-York, raised in Dutchess, Hudson and adjoining counties, came in yesterday, and as I write the Twelfth New-Jersey is passing by my window. During the past three weeks, the Union Relief Association here has fed upwards of sixty thousand. This is established on the same principle as those at Philadelphia, and has sent away many a weary and hungry soldier to the war, who, but for the kindness and hospitality here bestowed, would almost have famished by the way. Since August, 1861, 132,575 have been fed.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM BALTIMORE.

STREET FIGHTS—THE AUTHORITIES ACTIVE—CLOSING OF THE BAR-ROOMS—THE MORTAR-BOATS IN BATTLE ORDER—THE SPIRITS PROFESSING EVIL—HALF-HEARTED UNIONISTS WAVERING—RUMOR OF GEN. WOOL BEING SUPERSEDED.

BALTIMORE, Friday, Sept. 5.

The excitement in Baltimore has been more manifest to-day, and though we have had no disturbance worthy of mention, a variety of small affairs has kept the authorities busy. Crowds have been stationed about the principal newspaper office all day, and little knots of people have centered here and there on Baltimore-street, eagerly canvassing the probabilities of Stonewall JACKSON's appearing, and giving expression to their feeling in reference to such an event. The Union sentiment is decidedly in the ascendant among these street loungers, for the cogent reason, if for no better, that it is not safe to give voice to any other. Indeed, several persons, a little indiscreet in this respect, have been summarily knocked down by Unionists distinguished more for muscle than for manners. The most prominent instance has been that of Gen. JOHN ANDERSON, a prominent rebel sympathizer, who was knocked down to-day in Baltimore-street by a Union soldier, who is under arrest for the act.

It is unfortunate that there should be any in this city, claiming to be the friends of good government, who have not sufficient discretion or self-interest to refrain from acts of violence that disturb the public peace without advantage to any one, with positive injury to the cause of law and order. The authorities, military as well as civil, have done what they could to prevent disturbance of every kind, promptly arresting those breaking the peace. A squad of police has been stationed all day about the offices of the daily journals, to prevent an undue number from gathering around the bulletins to obstruct the public highway, and endanger the tranquillity of the city. In one instance, at least, a file of soldiers was sent to quell incipient symptoms of difficulty.

After the assault upon Gen. ANDERSON the barrooms about the city were peremptorily closed, reducing the lovers of good liquor to the unhappy condition of the Washingtonians, who have of late been compelled to a forcible compliance with the precepts of the society to which they correspond, at least in name. One of the disturbances to-day is directly traceable to the influence of liquor, and all of them have, with little doubt, a similar origin. The streets have been filled for the past two days with stragglers from the new recruits gathered into the different camps about the city, who, with the bounty money just paid them, have been having a good time generally, until the conduct of some of them led to an order recalling all to camp at once. Cavalry men have been scouring the streets in all directions this afternoon, picking up these stragglers and hurrying them to their respective camps.

Rumors in reference to JACKSON's movements are rife here, but nothing reliable can be obtained. I doubt if even his friends here understand his plans. It seems hardly possible that so slight a force as a few hundred rebels can have crossed, as is stated, at Edward's Ferry, especially as that vicinity of Maryland has not shown itself to be particularly rebellious in its sympathies. No trains have been run to-day on the Baltimore and Ohio road beyond Fredericksburgh, it being thought best to venture nothing in the present uncertainty as to the state of affairs along the road beyond there.

The nine vessels of PEARSE's Mortar Flotilla, now anchored off this city, are regarded with ominous forebodings by the Baltimoreans, who declare that the Government will not hesitate to bombard the city at the slightest provocation, without reference to the safety of the women and children. It is thought that the affair of the 19th of April has engendered a feeling at the North which would make this work peculiarly agreeable to the authorities. The timid still continue exercised about the disposition of their valuables, and burials and removals of household plate and other treasures are still the order. One good lady, of table-tipping philosophy, has been for some time followed by kindly spirits, urging her to this course, and telling her that there is soon to be a great outbreak in Baltimore. They have kept up an incessant talking at her for some time, giving her no peace, until she has finally followed their advice, and the talking has ceased.

Though a guilty conscience has, doubtless, much to do with the fear of the mortarboats, it is certain that they have been drawn up in line of battle, by order of the authorities at Washington, with the exception of one lying at Canton, opposite the city, undergoing repairs. This is sufficient to disturb the nervous, and physicians notice the effect of apprehension upon the delicate members of the families they visit.

Probably, the most uneasy class here are the those who are anxious to be in a situation to throw up their caps for the winning side, whichever it may be. Some of strong Union principles heretofore are tending in the direction of doubt, and are in a state to be readily convinced by tangible arguments from either side. All classes are naturally disturbed at the idea of having the war transferred to their own homesteads, and the feeling in favor of compromise of some sort with the rebels seems to be gaining ground. A good Union victory is needed to strengthen the hope of our friends here, many of whom are growing restless preparatory to doing obeisance to King Jeff., if the times make such a course seem advisable.

There is rumor that Gen. MOORE, now in command of Fort McHenry, is to relieve Gen. WOOL. If true, it, doubtless, has reference to the necessary absence of Gen. WOOL to other parts of his extensive command, which includes the Upper Potomac, where the rebels are in such a threatening attitude.

NEWSPAPER ACCOUNTS.

From the Baltimore American of yesterday.

Our city has been in great excitement during the past twenty-four hours, growing out of rumors which reached his city on Saturday morning, to the effect that the rebels had crossed the Potomac, and were threatening the city of Frederick. The telegraph had been cut during the night, and some fugitives from Frederick arrived who left before the enemy reached there. The latter brought such conflicting stories, that it was difficult to say what was the real state of affairs, but it was evident that great excitement existed throughout Frederick County, and that the people were flying for safety in every direction. There were no Federal troops at Frederick or in its vicinity, and the reports they brought were that rebel scouts had been seen in the vicinity of Buckeystown, that the Government stores at Frederick had been destroyed, and that the people were flying towards Pennsylvania in confusion.

The excitement increased here yesterday with the confirmation of the rebel occupation of Frederick but there was no despondency among loyal people, or fears as to the final result.

THE FIRST NEWS FROM FREDERICK.

On Saturday morning Mr. SHUTE, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, sent a train up the road with a party on a reconnoissance toward the Monocacy, to ascertain the condition of affairs in that vicinity. On arriving within two miles of the Monocacy bridge the train stopped and the party proceeded on foot toward the bridge. After moving along about a mile they met the bridge tender coming toward them. This was about 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

The bridge-tender reported to them that at about 4 o'clock on Saturday morning, a party of rebel cavalry arrived at the Frederick Junction, and having cut the telegraph wires and removed the instruments seized the operator and took him off. They did not interfere with anyone else or commit any damage to the station or the railroad bridge. The small National guard at the bridge retired on their approach, and not a single gun was fired on either side.

At a later hour in the morning a company of rebel infantry and cavalry arrived at the bridge and took possession, and placed pickets in all directions.

At Buckeystown, about four miles beyond the Frederick Junction, the rebels appeared in strong force about 5 o'clock in the morning, having crossed the Potomac during the night at Nolan's Ford, which is about five miles this side of the Point of Rocks. They consisted of infantry, artillery and cavalry, and are supposed to have numbered nearly five thousand men. They are represented to have presented a most dilapidated condition so far as clothing and shoes are concerned. The cavalry and artillery were nearly all barefooted, whilst a portion of the infantry were in the same condition. Some of the latter had their feet tied up with rags, or covered with raw hides, and others with dilapidated shoes from which their toes were protruding.

They are represented to have moved along quietly, as if having a thorough knowledge that there were no troops to impede their progress. It is said that an advance guard had preceded them during the night, who had camped at White Oak Springs, within three miles of Frederick. This latter party had foraged along the road, purchasing cattle and sheep, which they seized and paid for, and had a good stock of provisions collected by the time the main body reached them. They brought with them nothing but ammunition trains. After partaking of food at the Springs they took up their line of march for Frederick, first sending out foraging parties, who seized large numbers of cattle and sheep, and drove them back across the river. It is said that they paid for the cattle thus seized in Virginia and South Carolina money and United States Treasury notes at a fair valuation, telling the people that they came as friends, and not as enemies. At many houses they found the people had all fled, carrying off their horses and cattle with them. As to whether any violence was used, or depredations committed, we have not heard.

So far as ascertained no damage was committed to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, though it is said that they destroyed the Monocacy Culvert of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, letting out the water, and of course suspending navigation with Washington. Their appearance on the railroad has of course suspended operations. Every car and locomotive between the Monocacy and Cumberland had been withdrawn on the previous day, those above the Point of Rocks to Cumberland, and those on this side to Ellicott's Mills and the Relay House.

It is also understood that another division of the rebel force crossed the Potomac during Friday night at a ford about three miles above the Point of Rocks, near Berlin, consisting of cavalry, artillery and infantry; and proceeded across the Frederick road, and thence making a junction with the other force at White Oak Springs.

THE REBELS IN FREDERICK.

We have met with several gentlemen from Frederick, who left there a short time after the rebels had arrived and taken possession. Their statements, in the main, agree as to the condition of affairs, though, being loyalists, they kept as much as possible aloof from the invaders.

They variously represent the rebel force that passed through the city as from 15,000 to 20,000 under the command of Gen. HILL, of North Carolina. They made their appearance in the city about 10 o'clock in the morning, and marched in quietly, evidently having full knowledge that there was no opposition to be made to them. The force was halted on Market street, and a proclamation issued to the people. We have not been able to obtain a copy of the proclamation, but learn that it was to the effect that they came as friends, and not as enemies, to relieve the people of Maryland from the tyranny by which they were enslaved; that they did not propose to interfere with any non-combatants, to disturb private property, or to inquire into their opinions; and that whatever stores they might require would be paid for either in Confederate notes or United States Treasury notes, as the people might prefer. Of the latter money the men are represented as having a good supply, supposed to have been rifled from the bodies of the dead on the battle-field.

The foraging parties sent out in various directions to secure cattle, returned during the evening with droves of sheep, hogs, beeves, cows and horses. They seized everything they wanted, and are said to have tendered payment in Federal "green backs," whether counterfeit or good, is not known. These cattle were all driven towards the Potomac, rendering it probable that the whole invasion is only for foraging purposes, and to furnish supplies for the main body of the rebel army on the other side of the Potomac.

The purchases made in Frederick are said to have been paid for partly in Federal money, but mostly in Virginia and South Carolina money.

A rebel Provost-Marshal was appointed, with a strong guard, to preserve order, and during the afternoon the streets were thronged with rebel soldiers, visiting the stores—which the Provost-Marshal ordered to be opened—and purchasing shoes and clothing, of which they were in great want. So far as we could learn, strict order was preserved.

One of our informants states that a meeting of the citizens was called on Saturday evening, at which an address was delivered by BRADLEY JOHNSON, who used the most conciliatory language, and made great predictions as to the power of the rebel army not only to hold Western Maryland, but to capture Baltimore and Washington, and dictate terms of peace in Independence-square at Philadelphia. The rebel sympathizers generally attended the meeting, but the few Union men who had remained, kept to their homes. At 10 o'clock at night the men were all ordered to their camps on the outskirts of the city, and the first day of rebel rule in Frederick passed off quietly and peacefully.

The Federal flag was lowered from all the poles in Frederick, and the rebel "stars and bars" hoisted in their places. Most of the officers were quartered at the hotels and at the houses of prominent rebels, though a good many of the latter had also fled the city.

ANOTHER REBEL ARMY.

We learn that intelligence was received yesterday from Harper's Ferry to the effect that Col. MILES had received information that a large rebel army was moving from Winchester on to Martinsburgh, evidently with the intention of crossing the Potomac at Williamsport, and striking off toward Hagerstown and thence to Chambersburgh. The rebels in this vicinity reported that this army was under the command of Gen. BRAGG, who, at last accounts, was in East Tennessee, said to be on his way to Western Virginia, and from thence to Ohio. It is fearfully probable for him to have reached the vicinity of Winchester by this time, and there is no doubt that when our troops are in that vicinity must be a portion of the recent Army of Richmond.

The Federal force at Martinsburgh is under Gen. WOOL, who recently evacuated Winchester. Yesterday his pickets were attacked by seven hundred rebel cavalry, who were routed with considerable loss. Whatever rebel force is operating in that direction, have not yet passed Martinsburgh, and consequently cannot reach the Potomac at Williamsport before this evening or to-morrow. Should she, WOOL be supported by the main body he will doubtless fall back upon Harper's Ferry or cross into Maryland at Williamsport and dispute the passage of the river at that point.

PREPARATIONS FOR DEFENCE.

Gen. McCLELLAN has assumed of the entire army acting within and without the line of defences of Washington, also embracing the defences of Baltimore, and we learn that he will take the field this morning. As to the movement of troops to resist this invasion of Maryland, it would not be proper for us to state them at present, but should the rebels remain at Frederick, there is no doubt that there will be a severe battle in that vicinity within the next forty-eight hours.

In connection with the subject of the defences of Baltimore, it may be proper here to state that the Federal lines at Georgetown are twenty miles nearer to Frederick than to the City of Baltimore, and that the movement of troops from that place are to convey the territory between Baltimore and Frederick. Those who look for movements from Baltimore at the present time will, therefore, be disappointed. We are in possession of information that Gen. McCLELLAN has made every provision for the thorough defence of Baltimore and all its approaches.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

We learn that BRADLEY JOHNSON is left in command of Frederick as Provost Marshal.

The rebels had established pickets on the Baltimore turnpike, ten miles this side of Frederick, near New Market, where the pike crosses the railroad.

We learn that the turnpike was yesterday lined with wagons coming towards Baltimore. The enemy did not interrupt them, allowing them to pass on.

It was rumored, yesterday, that Gen. KEARNY is to be placed in some important command in connection with the defense of the city.

Gen. WOOL, yesterday, with a portion of his staff, made a reconnoissance out the Frederick road, with a view of selecting positions for the establishment of works for the defense of the city if they should be necessary.

A BATTLE EXPECTED.

Our Forces Awaiting an Attack at Rockville.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Sept. 7.

An officer of Gen. SUMNER's corps, who left Rockville this (Sunday) morning, says that our forces were drawn up there last evening in battle array, momentarily expecting the enemy, who were reported to be 20,000 strong. Rockville is only 18 miles from Washington.

NEWS FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

Reported Appearance of the Rebel Iron-Clad Merrimac No. 2—A Court-Martial at Norfolk, &c.

FORTRESS MONROE, Saturday, Sept. 6.

It is reported that the Merrimac No. 2 has been seen below Fort Darling and evidently making toward Newport's News.

There is not much doubt but that a reconnoissance has been made of the James River by two or three rebel gunboats within a day or two.

LATER.

There is great excitement here in consequence of the report that the Merrimac No. 2 had reached the vicinity of Newport's News, and had had an engagement with two of our gunboats and had driven them before her.

All the shipping here has been removed to a place of safety, but no fears of anything serious are entertained, as such arrangements have been made by our naval authorities as will probably make the career of the Merrimac, No. 2, of shorter duration than his former namesake.

An arrival from City Point, to-day, reports everything quiet on the river, and no rebels nor rebel gunboats in sight.

A Court-martial is to convene at Norfolk to-day, for the trial of Lieut. SHALLEY, of the Marine Guard. The Court is composed of the following officers: Lieut.-Col. J. G. REYNOLDS, President; Maj. J. WATSON, Capt. T. Y. FIELD, Lieut. HOOPER and Lieut. F. MONROE.

The officers, who arrived here this morning in the Baltimore boat, together with the counsel for the accused, A. THOMAS SHUE, of Washington, D. C., paid their respects to Maj.-Gen. DIX before proceeding to Norfolk.

The Baltimore mail-boat, which leaves here usually at 5 P. M., was detained last evening till 8 o'clock, by an order from Gen. WASHBURN to await his arrival from Suffolk. He arrived at that hour, and took to the boat.

THE PRIVATEER GRETO.

Her Commander Sick with Fever—A Spanish Vessel of War Watching the Pirate.

By a letter from the United States Consul at Matanzas, we learn that the privateer steamer Gretna now called the Florida, arrived at Cardenas on the 10th of August. Her commander, JOHN N. MAFFIT, is reported to be down with fever. A Spanish steamer is there to prevent her going out in pursuit of American vessels.

Palmer's Artificial Limb.

Mr. B. FRANK PALMER, the inventor and manufacturer of the artificial limb, which bears his name, has recently tendered to the Government his services, with the free use of his time and abilities, for the assistance of the halt and mutilated of our armies.

Congress, it will be remembered, passed an appropriation of $15,000 for the purchase of artificial limbs for such; and Mr. PALMER, whose invention is recognized by the various scientific bodies of Europe and America as infinitely beyond that of any other, desires that the soldiers should have none but the best, has generously offered to take the sum specified, and to apply it, without profit to himself, to the construction of as many of his artificial limbs as the amount will pay for.

Such an offer, at a time when selfishness and avarice might reasonably look for a vast fortune to be made from the necessities of our wounded men, deserves the highest commendation, and Mr. PALMER should receive, as he deserves, the thankful recognition of the public for this promotion of the National good and of much individual happiness.

How Shall Bandages and Lint be Prepared?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

There is need of information on this matter. On Tuesday last, I saw a lot of bandages rolle partly and laboriously made, among paper rags in quiet in Beekman-street, and were told that they had been sent in by some society, but were only for regimental Government was providing an abundance of proper material, made especially for the purpose. On Wednesday, happening in Monmouth County, I found a company of ladies using up good sheets in making bandages just like those sold at seven and eight cents per pound in Beekman-street.

As to lint, the ladies in my own town are according to "instructions" received, cutting the linen into blocks one inches square, and picking it upon. According to the City in one of our river steamers, yesterday, I saw a large circle of patriotic ladies employed the most of their time in picking lint. They cut the linen six inches square, and pulled out the threads separately, tying them in little bundles of dozens of straight fibres. They were also working accordingly to "instructions." Which is the right way? or, which is?

The last two are brothers, belonging to the same Company, and were wounded the same hour on Saturday last. Both were brought to Washington in the same ambulance. The first named has a bullet in his right arm, and the latter one in his left hip. These brothers enlisted in the army of the Union together, have been together throughout the war, and both are anxious to recover, so that they can again fight for their country. The wounds of neither are considered dangerous.

MONDAY, Sept. 8—P. M.

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, Sept. 6, 1862, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of Aug. 30:

Increase in Loans	$157,207
Increase in Specie	407,944
Increase in Circulation	101,159
Increase in Undrawn Deposits	691,395

Including the Clearing-house operations of the week, which show the inter-exchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury balance at the close of the week, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

	Sept. 1, 1861.	Aug. 30, 1862.	Sept. 6, 1862.
Capital	$60,056,800	$60,126,000	$60,126,000
Loans	130,158,300	158,278,552	158,435,759
Specie	41,867,230	38,040,986	38,128,926
Circulation	8,890,061	9,454,806	9,646,965
Gross Deposits	128,034,210	167,117,602	168,242,180
Exchanged	14,843,149	25,145,861	25,670,144
Undrawn	114,001,061	141,971,741	142,642,636
In Sub-Treasury	12,094,060	11,010,836	10,124,166

The Bank return shows a moderate increase in all departments. The Circulation is the largest ever reported by the New-York City Banks. The line of Loans and Discounts is just slightly advanced over last week, while the Specie average goes up nearly half a million.

The market for Money to-day is easy at 5 ⅌ cent. as the rule to the Brokers, with exceptions at 4 ⅌ cent. on Government collateral. The supply on these terms is easy. The price of Gold having gone up to 119¾ ⅌ cent., as against 118¾ on Saturday, Exchange on London is quoted correspondingly higher, say 130¾@131 ⅌ cent. at the close of the day. The terms on the Continent of Europe are thus quoted by Messrs. WARD & BRANDT, No. 39 Exchange-Place:

Paris—60 days' sight ⅌ dollar	4f. 28½c.
Paris—3 days' sight per dollar	4f. 26½c.
Amsterdam—60 days' sight ⅌ guilder	40⅞c.
Hamburg—60 days' sight per marc banco	42⅞c.
Frankfort—60 days' sight ⅌ florin	40⅞c.
Bremen—60 days sight ⅌ rix dollar	84⅞c.

The Stock Exchange at the early Board today manifested a considerable degree of steadiness. The Street appeared less uniformly disturbed by the military situation in Maryland than on Saturday. The price of Gold was higher, but the bidding for United States Securities and the Railway Stocks was no lower than on Saturday afternoon. Later in the day, and at the Second Board, the market was firm, and prices so advancing that the latest sales were ⅛@1 ⅌ cent., and in some instances ⅛@1 ⅌ cent., higher than at the outset of the dealings in the forenoon. A more cheerful feeling altogether obtained at the close of the day, the following being about the latest figures, as compared with Saturday:

	Mon.	Sat.		Mon.	Sat.
N. Y. Central	92⅛	92⅛	Hudson	51⅞	50⅞
Erie	32⅛	32	Pacific	100⅛	100⅛
Erie Preferred	62⅞	60	Panama	136½	135
Rock Island	67⅞	66⅞	Missouri	46⅞	45⅞
Galena	71⅞	71⅞	Tennessees	48⅞	48⅞
Mich. Central	67⅞	67⅞	U. S. 6s, 1874	88⅞	88⅞
Mich. Southern	21⅞	21⅞	U. S. 6s, 1881	99⅞	99⅞
Mich. Guaranteed	62⅞	62⅞	U. S. Notes, C. H.	100⅞	100⅞
Illinois Cen.	62⅞	61⅞	Treas. 7.30 6s, ct.	103	103⅛
Toledo	63⅞	63⅞	Bills on Lond'n.	130	129
Reading	46⅞	46⅞	Gold	118	118⅞

The following are the bids made to-day for the City Bank Shares:

New-York	102	Bank of the Republic	99
Mechanics'	105	Bank of North America	92
America	100	Metropolitan	98
National	93	East River	75
Merchants' Exchange	87	Nassau	97¾
State of New-York	83	Shoe and Leather	90
Commerce	81⅞	Importers' and Traders'	95
American Exchange	90	Park	107

The Railway mortgages are steady to-day. The following are the bids:

The Commercial of this afternoon has the following announcement of the advance of freights on the New-York Roads, which we have reason to know is more than borne out by the difficulties now surrounding the other trunk lines—the Pennsylvania Central and Baltimore and Ohio:

"We understand that one, at least, if not both the New-York trunk lines of railway, will equip advance their freight charges on and after Wednesday, the 10th inst. The pressure upon the Erie is such, that the President of the Road will make his own separate terms, should the managers of the Central, who have been consulted by telegraph, fail to cooperate. The pressure of freight upon both lines, and upon the canal, is very great, and is now to be increased by the blockade and interruption from the war excitement at Harrisburgh and in the Cumberland Valley, on the Pennsylvania Central, adjoining Maryland. The Baltimore and Ohio line is now virtually closed to through business. The charges upon the canal are greatly relatively higher, as some classes of freight are thus charged upon the roads."

We have received from the agent of Reuter's London Telegraph a lengthy explanation of his position in this country, touching the news to the English Press, of which the following paragraph is the most important:

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

As you have twice drawn the attention of the public to the American news dispatches forwarded to Reuter's Telegraph Office, London, by the representative of Mr. Reuter in this country, I should feel obliged if you would find room in your valuable columns for the following communication. I will premise by saying that I am the agent of Mr. Reuter in this country, a fact which I have never concealed; nor considered it necessary to make public until now; and I take the responsibility of all matter contained in the dispatches of American news telegraphed from the different European ports of call and arrival of the American steamers, and published in all the London papers under the heading, "Reuter's Telegrams;" but I wish it distinctly understood that I do not take the responsibility of all American news telegraphed to the London papers, much of which is sent by special correspondents, and published in the London papers in the same column as Reuter's telegrams, but under another heading, namely, "by magnetic and electric telegraph."

The Sub-Treasury receipts, to-day, were $190,680, including $84,165 for customs; payments, $1,300,051; balance, this afternoon, $9,014,794.

We have been requested to say (in correction of an accidental error in a former statement) that the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad has been completed on a capital of $500,000, of which $491,700 only has been issued. The only debt upon the property is a mortgage for $7,000 on eighty city lots owned by the Company.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Very full details of the rebel movement into Maryland, and their operations in Frederick and vicinity, will be found in our special correspondence and dispatches this morning. They do not differ in the facts from the accounts which have already been published. The Government authorities received the news of the invasion on Saturday evening, in documentary form, and during that night and Sunday, immense bodies of our troops were put in motion for the Upper Potomac and elsewhere. The authorities at Washington appear to be at fault as to the next movement likely to be made by the rebels, but we receive assurances that proper precautions have been taken to guard against damage "in certain quarters." The rebels appear to have captured no Government stores whatever at Frederick. All the National forces stationed there fell back to Harper's Ferry, but before doing so destroyed all the hospital and commissary stores they could not remove, and took away with them the sick and wounded. Communication with Harper's Ferry is of course cut off by the rebels, but there is no danger of the National force there being starved out, as has been feared, so long as they can receive supplies from the West over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which the recent skirmish at Martinsburgh indicates is still in our possession in that direction. It appears to be doubtful whether the rebels intend to make a movement on Harper's Ferry. With the Maryland Heights in our possession, such a movement could hardly be successful, unless in overwhelming numbers. It appears more probable that they contemplate a raid into Pennsylvania, by way of Hagerstown; a direct march upon Washington, or an attack upon Baltimore. At any rate, there is no doubt of their presence in the State in heavy force. A paroled prisoner who arrived in Washington yesterday reports that about 150,000 had crossed the Potomac, the main body of them at the Monocacy; and this report is credited by the military authorities. There has been very little if any fighting yet. There is a rumor of a skirmish yesterday morning in the neighborhood of Poolesville, but it is not confirmed.

The rebel force on the Upper Potomac is said to consist of JACKSON'S, LONGSTREET'S, EWELL'S and WALKER'S Divisions. No force, it is reported, has been left in front of Washington but cavalry. If this be so, the rebels are risking all upon a single chance, and if surrounded and defeated in Maryland or Pennsylvania, their army will be annihilated.

It having become public that Gen. PORTER had preferred charges against Gens. FRANKLIN, FITZ JOHN PORTER, HERINTZELMAN, and perhaps some others, and that those officers had been placed under arrest preliminary to their trial, the National Intelligencer thinks it proper to state that, although charges have been preferred against them, they have not been arrested, but are still on duty in the field.

We have a report from Fortress Monroe that the rebel Merrimac No. 2 has made her appearance in the James River—one account stating that she had come down to the vicinity of Newport's News, and had an encounter with two of our gunboats. The authorities at Fortress Monroe do not appear to be alarmed, however, and express their confidence that the career of the new rebel craft will be much shorter than that of the first one.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes from Nashville under date of August 31: "JOHN MORGAN had his headquarters at Hartsville, a few miles from Gallatin, and has issued a paper called the Vidette, wherein the editor says he shall publish 'semi-occasionally.' MORGAN'S force had reached the number of four thousand, and it is believed that the intrepid guerilla intends to flank Gen. MORGAN at Cumberland Gap, and 'bag' his men, as a large rebel force has left Chattanooga to cooperate with somebody somewhere. One thing we are assured of, the Cumberland Gap wires are in possession of the rebels. The rebels also have possession of the town of Clarksville, on the Cumberland River, and the large bridge over the Red River near there, has been destroyed. On Monday evening, Gens. NELSON and JACKSON started for Kentucky upon a small steamer, and came within a few miles of a guerrilla band, but were warned, I believe, by a Union man in the vicinity. The two generals narrowly escaped capture, and returned to this city late last night, much fatigued from the effects of a rapid thirty-mile ride by horse. The Columbia cars, as well as those on the Chattanooga Railroad, are fired into nearly every day. Yesterday, as the train bound to Huntsville passed Reynold's Station, several shots were fired, one of which killed a lady instantly, wife of a prominent rebel of Mount Pleasant. Several men were wounded last evening in the same manner, as the up-train passed Franklin."

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette estimates the loss of the National forces in the disastrous fight at Richmond, Ky., at 250 killed and 700 wounded.

Col. HERMAN'S Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, (numbering 1,000 men,) being the first regiment of the Corcoran Legion, has already been sent forward to Washington, and is now encamped at Arlington Heights, opposite the Capital. Col. McDONNOCH'S Regiment of New-York Volunteers—the second of the Legion—is recruited to nearly the requisite maximum number, and will probably be given marching orders in less than a week. The other accepted regiments of this new Irish-American organization are rapidly progressing with the work of enlistment, under the vigilant care of the gallant CORCORAN, who expects to be enabled to resume field-service in a few weeks.

GENERAL NEWS.

We have advices from Europe to the 31st ult., by the arrival off Cape Race of the steamships Scotia and Norwegian. The most important feature of news is the defeat, wounding and capture of GARIBALDI by the Royal Italian forces of Italy. He was put on board an Italian frigate and conveyed to Spezzia. The Liverpool Cotton Market was unchanged, with a further advance. The market for Breadstuffs and Provisions was dull. Consols were quoted at 93¼@93¾ for Money.

The Board of Aldermen failed to get a quorum yesterday, and adjourned sine die.

The Board of Councilmen last evening referred a resolution directing the Comptroller to pay the $50 bounty to all who enlisted on the day the Mayor's proclamation was issued. A resolution was adopted directing the Counsel to the Corporation to prepare the necessary papers to make a transfer of the New-York and Manhattan Gas-light Companies to the proprietorship of the City, on account of the design of those companies to charge their customers the tax levied by the General Government to sustain the expenses of the war. The Eighth-Avenue Railroad Company was directed to extend its track to Eighty-second-street. A report was adopted in favor of paving Hudson-street with Belgian pavement, from Eighth-avenue to Chambers-street, with the exception of the portion used by the railroad companies. The Comptroller's Annual Report, for 1861, was received. The Board concurred substantially with Alderman BOOTH'S resolution, offered August 4.

The Independent Order of Red Men held a high festival at CONRAD'S Yorkville Park, yesterday, in celebration of the first annual session of the Grand Tribe of America ever held in this City. The Grand Powhatan and other head officers were present from Philadelphia, with numerous delegations from Baltimore, Newark and other centres of State organization. A fine procession of the tribes or lodges of this City marched through our streets, and the day terminated with an address by the Grand Secretary and a ball at the Park. The Grand Session begins at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

There was a Convention of the principal Telegraph men of the country in session in Chicago, last week. Their deliberations were of rather a private character—having reference, in part, to the action of the Railroad Convention, in relation to the Telegraphic branch of the enterprise.

Paymaster LARNED, whose death we announced yesterday, was a native of Massachusetts, and was appointed from that State on the 1st of October, 1813, as an Ensign in the Twenty-first Infantry. Although not a graduate of West Point, he possessed every soldierly attribute—was prompt, brave, generous, and always faithful to his duties. On the 20th of July, 1864, he was appointed to the responsible position of Paymaster-General, with the rank of Colonel—a position to which his long and efficient public services had fairly entitled him, and which he continued to fill until his death.

The Stock Market was firmer at the close of the dealings, yesterday, than on Saturday. Gold left off 119; Exchange 130¾ ₩ cent. Wall-street was generally more cheerful on the situation of the War than at the close of last week.

Cotton was quite brisk and decidedly dearer, yesterday, Middlings having advanced to 55½c.@56½c. ₩ lb., under the influence of the news by the Norwegian. The transactions in Breadstuffs were heavy; but, in view of the liberal arrivals and of the rise in the freight market, prices of Wheat and Corn were lower. Flour was steady. Groceries, Provisions, Hides, Leather, Hops and Tallow were moderately dealt in. Hay, Wool and Tobacco were in good request. The scarcity of vessels and of seamen had the effect of enabling shipowners to establish an advance in rates on ocean freight, which, however, tended to check the export movement of produce.

The business at the Live Stock markets was brisk early in the day, but fell off toward noon, and closed heavy at night. About 4,400 beeves were on sale at Forty-fourth-street, the majority of which were of fair quality, though a few lots of little hoppers might easily be mistaken for calves. The prevailing rates were 8c.@8½c. for good to choice cattle, and from that down to 6c. for "snow-flies." Prices have scarcely varied from last week, and enough remain unsold to keep the prospect for an advance out of question. A few more lots are expected, which will make the total at all the yards near 5,000 head.

The English Demand for a Division of the Union.

The London Times is a miracle of patience and of faith. It indulges a hope that the Americans will soon come to appreciate the disinterestedness of the British nation in its treatment of our rebellion. We cannot fail, the Times thinks, sooner or later to perceive that the controlling impulse of the British Government, and the paramount sentiment of the British people, in all their dealings with foreign Powers, is a profound, simple-hearted, almost angelic devotion to principle. The temptations have been very great, the Times bids us observe, to meddle with our affairs. There is no nation on earth capable of resisting them without help, except the English. France would have pitched in long ago if the excellent British had not prevented. The United States ought to be very grateful to the good English Government, which has not interfered in their affairs—which has resisted all temptations to break the blockade, and to help the Southern rebels destroy the great Republic; and in course of time, this admirable exponent of British character is quite certain the Americans will not fail to make due acknowledgment for all their kindness.

We don't like to appear rude, but we must tell the Times that its eggs will be addled long before they are hatched. The British, by their manœuvres, have succeeded in just one thing and no more: they have planted in the heart of every class of the American people, North and South, loyalists, rebels and half-way men, the most profound and thorough contempt for their character, the most bitter and envenomed detestation of their conduct. No human being on this continent gives the British Government the slightest credit for "disinterestedness" or for "principle," in the policy it has pursued. It has been neutral because it did not dare be otherwise. The Prime Minister himself has over and over again declared that the British Government would take no part in the contest, because it could not do so without involving England in the war,—because interference of any kind would only increase all the evils she now suffers,—because in a word the selfish interests of England required her to keep out of it. She had very little to gain and everything to lose by war with us. She might possibly get cotton and free trade with the South. But she would be very certain to lose her commerce, to lose her colonies, to starve her people, to provoke a revolution at home, and to get into war with half of Europe. She acted wisely in keeping out of it; but it is a little too much for her to claim our gratitude and admiration for what is simply the baldest and sheerest selfishness, diluted with a discreet and unconscious cowardice. It isn't possible for any mortal to waste admiration on such conduct.

From the very beginning of the Rebellion England has insisted on one thing and one only in connection with it,—and that is the division of the Union. From the day the first gun was fired at Sumter, the British have insisted on the independence of the South. If they urge peace, it is on that condition. That is the one thing which they regard as indispensable. All their exhortations to peace, all their disinterested longings for restored harmony and concord,—all their proffers of mediation and friendly intervention,—all their demands, arguments and advice, proceed upon this as the condition sine qua non. The latest number of the Saturday Review affords an instance. It implores the belligerents to cease their war—to come to terms—but only on the assumption of a divided Union. "No success of the Federal arms," it says, "could lead to a more desirable result than a recognition of Southern independence practically dictated by the stronger belligerent;" and it assures the North that on such a basis it can have "foreign mediation at will." It is not in the least difficult to understand this,—though it would not be quite so easy to explain it on the high theory of John Bull's disinterestedness. The one thing on which John Bull has set his heart is the disruption of the American Union,—the downfall of the United States as one of the first-rate Powers. ROBSUCK, who represents the English character more accurately than PALMERSTON, because he has less brains, told the whole truth on that point. The American Republic is growing too powerful; the fancied interest of England demands its disruption: and as DE TOCQUEVILLE has remarked, whatever is for the interest of England becomes at once her highest moral law. When it suits her convenience she affects belief in the Ten Commandments. Just now she knows but two—Free Trade and the Disruption of the American Union.

The English will learn in time that there is no political sentiment on which the American people are so nearly unanimous as that of National Unity; and that the very last thing to which any considerable portion of them will consent, is a division of the Union. Even the Peace Party, whose strength and influence the Times is very much in the habit of exaggerating of late, would infinitely prefer the absolute surrender of the National Government to JEFF. DAVIS, in the hope of a reconstruction upon the extremest principles of the Southern Constitution, to a severance of the Union and the establishment of a Southern Confederacy. The Southern rebels themselves do not desire division per se: they would much prefer to have the Union maintained if only they could be permitted to rule it. At the outset of the rebellion it was said that Secretary CHASE advocated a division in preference to war,—but he found little support, and has long since, we believe, abandoned that position. So that at this moment we know absolutely no party, and no considerable number of men, who regard dissolution as admissible in any case. The loyal people of the whole country will fight as long as they have a man or a dollar left, to maintain the Union. The "peace men" would surrender the Government to JEFF. DAVIS and the South rather than consent to disunion, and the rebels themselves prefer a united country, if they can only make its destiny subservient to their interests.

The English, therefore, in urging a separation encounter the most powerful sentiment of the American people. They demand what is most odious and abhorrent to the national instinct. The Americans (our English friends may have heard) are a proud, ambitious race, eager for power and consideration in the world, and reluctant, even beyond the average, to descend to the level of a third-rate nation. They will not willingly turn away their eyes from those visions of Empire which have dazzled them so long—and they know perfectly well that unity is the indispensable condition of making them real. Every consideration which can affect the action of great communities, the memories and glories of the past, the bright anticipations of the future, the dreams of the patriot and the hopes of the ambitious and aspiring—everything which can stir the patriotic passions of a youthful and energetic nation, prompts to the preservation of the Union at what ever sacrifice of personal opinion and temporary convenience. The "peace party," moreover, on which the Times relies, understands perfectly that without unity there can be no peace, and that a division of the Union only lays the foundation for endless wars.

Our English advisers will do well to consider this aspect of the matter a little. They may find it advisable to direct their efforts to some object which is more attainable than this, of dividing the Union. What the future may have in store for us we do not know. We may conquer the South, and bring them back to their allegiance. We may be conquered by them, or even betrayed into their hands, and compelled again to come under the Southern yoke; or we may struggle for years to come in exhausting wars. Each of these alternatives is infinitely more probable than the consent of the American people to the disruption and destruction of the American Republic; and this fact John Bull will do well to lay to heart.

CONDITION OF OUR TROOPS AT CUMBERLAND GAP.—About a fortnight ago we pointed out the perils that were gathering around the Union force at Cumberland Gap, under Gen. MORGAN; that he was isolated from help or relief, that he was cut off from supplies, that the enemy was gathering in his front and rear, and that unless succor by some means soon reached him, his destruction or starvation was inevitable. Since then, by the rebel successes in Kentucky, Gen. MORGAN'S dangers have been increased a thousand fold, and his position looks now all but hopeless.

It was announced, ten days ago, that Gen. CASSIUS M. CLAY was marching with a column to his relief; but the latter gentleman is now in Washington, unwilling, it is said, for some reason or other, to take part in the war. It was while marching in the direction of the Gap, with ten or fifteen thousand men, that Gen. NELSON was assailed by the rebels at Richmond, Ky., on the 30th ult., and, after a severe fight, was driven back.

At present there seems no prospect of getting a force to Gen. MORGAN'S relief until Eastern Kentucky is entirely cleared of the rebels who now hold it from its southern line up to the Ohio. The army nearest to him is that of Gen. BUELL, but that is over a hundred and fifty miles off, and has enough ado to maintain its own ground—which, indeed, it seems it cannot do—without thinking of piercing such a distance through the enemy's country as to Cumberland Gap. Why not, therefore, no means whatever of relieving Gen. MORGAN from the deadly peril which environs him, unless a force sufficiently large be sent to overcome the rebels that hold Kentucky, and pierce through all obstacles until Cumberland Gap is reached, when, by a movement in conjunction with Gen. BUELL'S troops—if he can only be got to move—East Tennessee may be reached and liberated, and all these minor difficulties solved.

In the meantime, Gen. MORGAN'S supplies are daily getting shorter, and there is no means whatever of his adding to them, and famine must speedily stare him in the face. When we expressed fears on this subject a fortnight ago, the telegraph replied by asserting that MORGAN had supplies for thirty days, and was therefore in no danger. Nearly half that time has now gone, and since then, every avenue of supply has been taken possession of by the rebels. It is evident that prompt measures will have to be taken by the Government, if we would save ourselves from a disaster in the Southwest which we can ill endure.

The Rebel Invasion of the Loyal States.

It seems to be settled that a force of at least 40,000 rebels has crossed the Potomac and takes position at Frederick, in Maryland, about sixty miles west of Baltimore, and about forty north from Washington. They have been permitted by the Government to cross without resistance. Telegraphic reports from the Capital would almost lead us to believe that they had been invited there,—for we are assured that the Government is perfectly satisfied with their position, and that none of them will ever return. We hope this may prove to be true;—but we would rather see it proved then give full credence to it in advance. As we remarked yesterday, we have too many of these official assurances already on hand unredeemed, to be especially eager for more.

The experience of the past justifies us in assuming that the rebels have not invaded Maryland without a just estimate of the perils of the undertaking, and of the force necessary to overcome them. They are away from their supplies, though the country through which they are marching will, in good part, supply them. They must be away from their supports, unless, indeed, the whole rebel army is following them. They can hardly remain where they are, because they are exposed to the attack of our army from Washington. They may count on having time before that attack is made, to collect an army strong enough to defy it. In this it is the obvious duty of our Government to disappoint them. We hear with satisfaction that very heavy detachments of our troops have already been sent against them, and presume they will be rapidly supported by as many more as the exigency may require.

If the rebels do not choose to remain at Frederick, they will probably march on Baltimore,—not into the city, where they would be exposed to the shell of our forts, but near enough to it to be joined by the traitors awaiting their arrival, and to give them command of the railroads leading to it from the North and West. With 40,000 or 50,000 disciplined and experienced troops, they may not unreasonably hope to hold their ground against the new levies, whom they hope to intercept,—leaving the main body of their army to deal with the main body of ours, if the latter should leave Washington to give them battle. The principal purpose of their inroad into Maryland is, doubtless, to obtain supplies,—to secure reinforcements from the Secessionists of that State, and to cut the lines of railroad over which our army receives its stores and reinforcements.

If the main body of the rebel army should effect a strong lodgment on the soil of Maryland, or among the mountains of Southern Pennsylvania, we must not deceive ourselves as to the difficulty of driving them out. Our main reliance must be on overtaking and destroying them before they have time to unite their forces and strengthen their position. Whether the Government is taking steps to do this or not, we have no means of knowing. Up to the present time, certainly, the rebels have met with no opposition at any point. We are bound to assume, we suppose, that the Government had some good reason for permitting them to cross the Potomac, with cavalry, artillery and infantry, without the least resistance, and for giving them free right of way through Maryland as far as they have gone. At what particular point their onward march is to be contested, we shall know in due time.

Everything depends on the strength and character of the force we send against them, and on the manner in which that force is commanded. We observe that Gens. FITZ-JOHN PORTER, FRANKLIN and GRIFFIN, who stand charged by Gen. POPE with having disobeyed his orders and refused to engage the enemy, have been relieved from arrest by the President, at Gen. McCLELLAN'S request, on the ground that their services were imperatively required in the field. The exigency must be pressing to warrant so extraordinary a proceeding; but we trust the remedy will be found adequate. Gen. McCLELLAN evidently either does not believe that the officers named were guilty of the glaring misconduct alleged against them, or else he has confidence that, if he commands them, they will not repeat it.

REBEL RECRUITING IN MARYLAND.—While the rebel army remains in and on the borders of Maryland, enjoying the fat things of Montgomery and Frederick Counties, restoring its exhausted energies, and gathering up stores of supplies for future use, it will also be able to largely recruit its thinned ranks from among the rebels of Maryland. The large rebel element in the State will no doubt rush to the Confederate standard, now that the Stars and Bars is unfurled so near by. The Maryland rebels have been greatly afraid of the operations of the Federal conscription of late, and have been adopting every ruse to get southward into Virginia or somewhere within the rebel lines,—many of them declaring that they were willing to remain neutral at home, but if they were to be forced to fight, they would certainly fight for their rebel friends.

The rebel army, while it is preparing to strike [illegible] Maryland, will get no [illegible] whatever of relieving Gen. MORGAN from the deadly peril which environs him, unless a force sufficiently large be sent to overcome the rebels that hold Kentucky, and pierce through all obstacles until Cumberland Gap is reached, when, by a movement in conjunction with Gen. BUELL'S troops—if he can only be got to move—East Tennessee may be reached and liberated, and all these minor difficulties solved.

In the meantime, Gen. MORGAN'S supplies are daily getting shorter, and there is no means whatever of his adding to them, and famine must speedily stare him in the face. When we expressed fears on this subject a fortnight ago, the telegraph replied by asserting that MORGAN had supplies for thirty days, and was therefore in no danger. Nearly half that time has now gone, and since then, every avenue of supply has been taken possession of by the rebels. It is evident that prompt measures will have to be taken by the Government, if we would save ourselves from a disaster in the Southwest which we can ill endure.

The Rebel Invasion of the Loyal States.

It seems to be settled that a force of at least 40,000 rebels has crossed the Potomac and takes position at Frederick, in Maryland, about sixty miles west of Baltimore, and about forty north from Washington. They have been permitted by the Government to cross without resistance. Telegraphic reports from the Capital would almost lead us to believe that they had been invited there,—for we are assured that the Government is perfectly satisfied with their position, and that none of them will ever return. We hope this may prove to be true;—but we would rather see it proved then give full credence to it in advance. As we remarked yesterday, we have too many of these official assurances already on hand unredeemed, to be especially eager for more.

The experience of the past justifies us in assuming that the rebels have not invaded Maryland without a just estimate of the perils of the undertaking, and of the force necessary to overcome them. They are away from their supplies, though the country through which they are marching will, in good part, supply them. They must be away from their supports, unless, indeed, the whole rebel army is following them. They can hardly remain where they are, because they are exposed to the attack of our army from Washington. They may count on having time before that attack is made, to collect an army strong enough to defy it. In this it is the obvious duty of our Government to disappoint them. We hear with satisfaction that very heavy detachments of our troops have already been sent against them, and presume they will be rapidly supported by as many more as the exigency may require.

If the rebels do not choose to remain at Frederick, they will probably march on Baltimore,—not into the city, where they would be exposed to the shell of our forts, but near enough to it to be joined by the traitors awaiting their arrival, and to give them command of the railroads leading to it from the North and West. With 40,000 or 50,000 disciplined and experienced troops, they may not unreasonably hope to hold their ground against the new levies, whom they hope to intercept,—leaving the main body of their army to deal with the main body of ours, if the latter should leave Washington to give them battle. The principal purpose of their inroad into Maryland is, doubtless, to obtain supplies,—to secure reinforcements from the Secessionists of that State, and to cut the lines of railroad over which our army receives its stores and reinforcements.

If the main body of the rebel army should effect a strong lodgment on the soil of Maryland, or among the mountains of Southern Pennsylvania, we must not deceive ourselves as to the difficulty of driving them out. Our main reliance must be on overtaking and destroying them before they have time to unite their forces and strengthen their position. Whether the Government is taking steps to do this or not, we have no means of knowing. Up to the present time, certainly, the rebels have met with no opposition at any point. We are bound to assume, we suppose, that the Government had some good reason for permitting them to cross the Potomac, with cavalry, artillery and infantry, without the least resistance, and for giving them free right of way through Maryland as far as they have gone. At what particular point their onward march is to be contested, we shall know in due time.

Everything depends on the strength and character of the force we send against them, and on the manner in which that force is commanded. We observe that Gens. FITZ-JOHN PORTER, FRANKLIN and GRIFFIN, who stand charged by Gen. POPE with having disobeyed his orders and refused to engage the enemy, have been relieved from arrest by the President, at Gen. McCLELLAN'S request, on the ground that their services were imperatively required in the field. The exigency must be pressing to warrant so extraordinary a proceeding; but we trust the remedy will be found adequate. Gen. McCLELLAN evidently either does not believe that the officers named were guilty of the glaring misconduct alleged against them, or else he has confidence that, if he commands them, they will not repeat it.

REBEL RECRUITING IN MARYLAND.—While the rebel army remains in and on the borders of Maryland, enjoying the fat things of Montgomery and Frederick Counties, restoring its exhausted energies, and gathering up stores of supplies for future use, it will also be able to largely recruit its thinned ranks from among the rebels of Maryland. The large rebel element in the State will no doubt rush to the Confederate standard, now that the Stars and Bars is unfurled so near by. The Maryland rebels have been greatly afraid of the operations of the Federal conscription of late, and have been adopting every ruse to get southward into Virginia or somewhere within the rebel lines,—many of them declaring that they were willing to remain neutral at home, but if they were to be forced to fight, they would certainly fight for their rebel friends.

The rebel army, while it is preparing to strike [illegible] and old darkey Negro, will get no [illegible] while largely recruited from this class; and if they do not obtain, as they have declared they would, 50,000 volunteers in Maryland, it would not be surprising if they should get a fifth of that number. The rebel army has arrived at the very nick of time—just a few days previous to the day on which the conscription act was to be enforced. It would be well for our officers in Baltimore, and along the line of the railroad between Baltimore and Washington, as well as at other important points of the State, to keep a strict watch over all travelers in the direction of Frederick and the Potomac.

Our General Officers.

Gen. POPE has gone West to take command of his new Department. We believe he has assured the President that the charges preferred against him are entirely untrue, and that his failure to destroy the enemy in front of Washington was not his fault. It is evident, from the fact of his receiving so promptly a new command, that he retains the undiminished confidence of President LINCOLN.

It is understood that Gen. POPE alleges that the only reason why he could not renew the action on Saturday morning was, that his men were on the verge of starvation,—that he had telegraphed and written repeatedly for rations and forage, and that on Saturday morning he received a letter from Gen. FRANKLIN, written on Friday at Alexandria, and saying that he was directed by Gen. McCLELLAN to say that rations and forage would be loaded and sent forward as soon as he would send a cavalry escort to Alexandria to bring them up. As this could not possibly be done, he was compelled to fall back to Centerville. As the President has appointed Gen. McCLELLAN to the highest command, it is clear he does not believe this statement, and that he has not full faith in Gen. POPE.

It is also understood that Gen. POPE has officially charged that Gen. FITZ JOHN PORTER remained, throughout the heavy battle of Friday, all day in full sight of the enemy and in full hearing of the guns, and yet refused to obey orders to attack him,—and that Gen. GRIFFIN'S brigade was also held inactive during the whole of Saturday's battle, while the General himself spent the whole day in making ill-natured strictures on the commanding General, in presence of a promiscuous assemblage. And Gen. POPE attributes to these circumstances his loss of the battle. A court was ordered to investigate these grave charges, but on Gen. McCLELLAN'S application it has been postponed, and each of these officers is restored to his command. This also would indicate a lack of faith in Gen. POPE, or else a surplus of faith in Gen. McCLELLAN, on the part of the President.

Gen. McDOWELL is in this City under arrest, as we are informed, on charge of treason. By whom it is preferred, or on what grounds, we are not aware.

It is clear from these facts that the condition of our army officers is somewhat chaotic. Whether those among them against whom no charges have been preferred have been assigned to any new commands, we are not aware.

The Capture of Garibaldi—Downfall of his Projects.

Few, we imagine, will read without emotion the telegraphic words that tell of the defeat and capture of GARIBALDI, and his confinement, wounded, in the prison of Spezzia. To this tragic finale has come the mad, mistaken enterprise into which the Italian Liberator was betrayed, and which, but a moment ago, threatened to compromise the destiny of Italy. The movement, and all it potentially contained of weal or of woe for Italy and for Europe, is brought to naught; and the spark is quenched which might have kindled a conflagration throughout a Continent.

The telegraphic dispatch from Cape Race which brings this tidings gives no details of the engagement or even of its locality. We presume, however, that it took place at Reggio, in Naples, on the extreme southwestern point of Italy, and directly opposite Sicily. GARIBALDI and his followers, after taking possession of several towns in the island, had effected a landing at this point. Previous advices mentioned that the Government had sent a large number of Royal troops to Reggio to seek out and defeat GARIBALDI. In this mission they now appear to have been successful, compelling GARIBALDI, after a sharp contest, to surrender; and the latest advices inform us that he was conveyed, in an Italian frigate, wounded and a prisoner, to Spezzia.

In judging this brief episode, which now presents itself with dramatic completeness of beginning, middle, and end, from the point of view of its total development, we find nothing to shake, but everything to strengthen the condemnatory sentence we were forced to pass upon it at the start. Lofty though the sentiment was which animated GARIBALDI in desiring to make Italy completely one and free by driving the French from Rome and the Austrians from Venice—a sentiment shared by every lover of Italy—yet as a practical scheme it is impossible to imagine a more wild or fatuitous course than that which GARIBALDI took to realize it. "Rome or death" was the watchword with which the popular chief sought to rouse the Italian population: but "Rome or the death of Italy" was the tragic reality lurking under the glittering antithesis. It was certainly not an auspicious harbinger of his enterprise that all the enemies of Italy united in pushing him on. Strange to say—and yet not so strange—both the Revolutionists and the Reactionists, both the Mazzini party and the Bourbon-priest party, favored, either secretly or openly, the scheme of GARIBALDI. That which united these opposing extremes was the intense desire that the Unity of the Italian Kingdom should be broken up. Each hoped that if the elements were once more thrown into solution, they might be crystallized according to its mould. While the revolutionists saw in such an event the opportunity for a Red Republic of the Mazzini type, the Bourbon and Priest party held their breath over the renewed prospect afforded for the restoration of the Duchies, the reinstatement of [illegible], and the [illegible] with [illegible] of the Papal and despot rule. While the [illegible]-minded and patriotic Garibaldi pursued the road along which the deep yearnings of his nature pushed him, such vultures hovered, expectant, on his path. It was, doubtless, from an instinctive apprehension of the perilous and impracticable character of his scheme that the new movement never became popular with the Italian people. Nothing resembling the uprising of '59 took place; he was able, at the best, and after months of effort, to surround himself with but three or four thousand followers; and the defeat of GARIBALDI at Reggio, and the death-blow there given his scheme, is significant, not so much in a military as in a political or moral sense. It proves that the instinct, sense and judgment of the nation were against him.

But though we are thus constrained to condemn the rebellion of GARIBALDI from the point of view of the National welfare, there are still many personal considerations that must go far to mitigate any sentence we may venture to pass against him. It is, indeed, impossible to distribute the blame of the Sicilian enterprise with even approximate justice. There is always powerful evidence that he was the victim of Ministerial duplicity, and that he only discovered at the last moment his own antagonism to the policy of the Government. According to his apologists, crafty intriguers, misconceiving his character, for their own purposes encouraged his illusions, until their disavowal of his projects almost drove him mad. If at this moment, and after he discovered that the King was really opposed to the enterprise, he had once more possessed that noble self-abnegation which more than once led him to abandon his own most cherished plans, to the end that the cause might not suffer—all would have been well. But his good genius appears to have deserted him. He rejected the King's private appeals and spurned his public proclamations. He did further; forgetting his allegiance to the constitutional Sovereign in whose army he held a commission, he raised the standard of revolt. Then was seen that tragic antagonism which we had hoped never to have beheld; the man who had done more than all others to make Italy what it is, arrayed against its constitutional King! There is in history few more sad careers than the recent career of GARIBALDI. No late mistakes can take away the admiration which his lofty and heroic life inspires, or deprive him of the sympathy which consecrates a noble though misguided cause. His career, from first to last, has been marvelous and exceptional, and its end is full of matter wherewith

"To point a moral or adorn a tale."

KENTUCKY'S CAPITAL GONE.—The destruction of bridges by the rebels, on the railroad between Frankfort and Louisville, shows that they are in complete control of the capital and entire interior of that State. The Governor had previously removed to Louisville, with the Legislature; and we presume the State archives are all safe. Still, the fact that the capital of Kentucky is in the hands of the rebels, as well as the present capital of Maryland, is a mortifying fact, and should certainly inflame the patriotism of the two States and beget a feeling of resentment that the loyalists in no part of the country have yet manifested.

In Kentucky, the rebel rule will doubtless be extremely severe. The lines have been tightly drawn in that State, nearly a year, and the bitterest feuds exist between the Unionists and secession sympathizers. The latter will glout in the present opportunity to be revenged, and immense waste of Union property and severe persecution of active and outspoken Union families must ensue. But all this, in the end, will work out good, and tend to break down the "wall of partition" that, in spite of good intentions on both sides, has too much separated the Unionists of the Free and of the Border States in times past.

The Provisional Governor of Kentucky chosen last year by the rebels, was killed at Shiloh, and we have never heard that a successor to him was named. If they have such an officer, he might easily issue his "proclamations" from the State Capitol at Frankfort, and thus have the semblance, at least, of a rightful Government. But this trick will, perhaps, be omitted now, as it was so shallow and so fruitlessly played before as to be despised. BRECKINRIDGE will probably be appointed Military Governor, and no effort be made to organize a State Government.

THE BEST POSSIBLE WAY TO DISCOURAGE ENLISTMENTS.—If the powers that be had designed to put a clog on enlistments in the State of New-York, they could hardly have contrived a condition of things more favorable to that end than that we now suffer under. The State bounty of $50, which was extended by a special order of Gov. MORGAN from the 1st to the 6th inst., ceased on Saturday, and, meanwhile, there is no prospect, for weeks to come, of a draft. The interval is likely to be one of practical paralysis of volunteering. And this, we beg the Government to note, will not be owing to any want of patriotism on the part of the people, but is simply the natural result of the confusion which the authorities have introduced into the method of raising soldiers. Now that the bounty is no longer to be paid, it is very certain that neither that class who enlist purely for the sake of the bounty nor that other class to whom the offer of bounty is an inducement will be available; while with many the conviction of the absolute and immediate necessity of a draft is so paramount that there will be little disposition to encourage its delay by inducing the authorities to believe that, after all, volunteering may suffice.

It is certainly a most distressing fact, that at the very crisis when, above all others, we want soldiers—when, in fact, the salvation of the nation may depend on the promptitude with which soldiers are forthcoming—such confusion should have befallen the method of raising them, as completely to neutralize the best efforts and patriotic impulses of the people. One thing is certain, the six hundred thousand men called for must be had; and much as we are opposed to a system that has introduced a pernicious and mercenary rival-ty into volunteering, it would be better, if for some week, to make the [illegible] to continue the bounty hitherto offered to volunteers.

The New Currency.—The distribution of the new Government "postage currency" as it is cleverly styled, commenced yesterday. As no one person, however, was allowed to purchase more than $5 worth, the amount put into circulation was comparatively small. We hear it may be distributed as rapidly as possible. For a more contemptible and disgusting substitute for small change was never authorized by any respectable Government than the patches of gum arabic which have been doing duty for the past few weeks. No greater proof of patience and patriotism has ever been furnished by any community, than has been afforded by our people in the toleration of these sticky nuisances.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Care of the Wounded from the Late Battle-Fields.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

Washington, Monday, Sept. 8.

THE WOUNDED.

Twelve ambulances loaded with wounded soldiers arrived here this afternoon from Centreville. The wounded men were distributed among the different hospitals. The Surgeon in charge states that all the remaining wounded have now been removed from the field to Centreville, and placed under shelter, and are being cared for by our physicians. He also says that Jeff. Davis has sent orders from Richmond that the dead remaining on the field shall be buried. A large number yet remain on the ground.

THE REBELS SHELLING OUR AMBULANCE HORSES.

A gentleman just returned from the late battle field, states that quite a number of the hacks pressed into the service on Saturday week, for the purpose of conveying the wounded to this city, are still on the battle field, the rebels having taken the horses, and thus prevented them from returning home.

PRISONERS EXCHANGED.

It appears from Geneva Orders No. 118, issued by the War Department, that the number of officers of the United States service who have been exchanged as prisoners of war for prisoners taken in arms against the United States up to Aug. 15 279, including two Brigadier-Generals, (Buchanan and McCall,) eleven Colonels, nine Lieutenant-Colonels, nineteen Majors, ninety-five Captains, eighty-three First and Second Lieutenants. One hundred and thirteen "Confederate" officers were exchanged for rank and file of United States army prisoners delivered to City Point, nine tiers, equivalent to 4,135 privates, received by Col. Sawtelle, fully exchanged; Hatteras delivery, to Gen. Burnside, fully exchanged, enlisted men, captured at Murfreesboro', Tenn., by Gen. Frazer, fully exchanged; delivery of rank and file to the Adjutant-General, United States Army, at Aiken's Landing, James River, upward of 2,000, Aug. 5, 1862, fully exchange; Gen. Pleasonton and Carrington exchanged for McCall and Patterson, respectively, so soon as the two former, now in the West, are released; the latter in the meantime being prisoners on parole.

WORK FOR NEW REGIMENTS.

The One Hundred and Thirty-ninth Pennsylvania Regiment went to Bull Run battle-field to assist in burying our dead. Some other new regiments have, in the same way, been introduced first to the dark features of war, and the Government is sharply criticized for such action. But men who are not able to endure the sight of death on the field have no business in the ranks; and the sooner our men become hardened to the stern realities of the present struggle, the better for them and for the country.

NEGLECT OF THE WOUNDED.

The Surgeon-General is reported to have said, on Friday, that there were about 1,500 wounded soldiers remaining in the vicinity of Bull Run at that time; and that 200 of that number would probably die for want of proper attendance. As many more are said to have died for want of a properly organized ambulance corps. No pains have been spared in the hospitals here to supply all needed attention, and necessaries of every kind.

HEADQUARTERS GENERALSHIP.

In nearly every late battle in Virginia, regiments on our side have had to contend against brigades of the enemy; and our brigades against the enemy's divisions. This, too, while we had a numerical superiority, if proper management had been used in bringing them into action.

STRAGGLERS.

An evidence of the want of confidence felt by our soldiers in their leaders, is found in the immense number of stragglers included in the "missing." There is good cause for this, when we find hundreds of officers included in the same dishonorable list; men supposed to have been killed, but who have afterward turned up in Washington, without having entered a wound.

OFFICERS IN WASHINGTON.

A general disgust is inspired by the presence of the great crowd of officers now here, whose duty it is to be with their commands. Willard's and the National are overflowing; and the dining-rooms resound with champagne artillery and ill-timed hilarity.

FEELING IN WASHINGTON.

Notwithstanding the present perilous condition of the country and of Washington, the tone of the city has been very nearly free from anything like panic. There is a general absence of hope of any brilliant change in the tide of war; and every one seems ready to meet any fate that may be in store for us. The imminency of the danger has not yet produced harmony of action in the Government, or worked a remedy for the disgraceful jealousies of our Generals.

PROMOTED FOR GALLANT CONDUCT.

The following named gentlemen were yesterday appointed Brigadier-Generals, for gallant and meritorious service in the field: Col. Gershom Mott, of the Sixth New-York; Col. Joseph E. Carr, of the Second New-York, and Col. Nelson Taylor, of the Thirty-third New-York.

STRAGGLERS, ETC.

Since Saturday morning the Provost Guard has sent to the different regiments nearly 1,600 stragglers. Many of them were really worn out by long marches. Within the same period sixteen prisoners have been sent to the Old Capitol, charged with aiding the enemy by discouraging enlistments, &c. They are from different parts of the country.

FAMILIES LEAVING.

A number of families left Washington yesterday afternoon for the North, in view of apprehended danger. The alarm, however, is not general.

ARMY MATTERS.

The friends of Gen. Andrew Porter here, say he has been ordered to report to Gov. Curtin, for the organization of the volunteer forces.

Among other military officers now here is Gen. Marcellus, who will doubtless be assigned to duty under Maj.-Gen. McClellan.

Col. George D. Ruggles, Chief of Gen. Pope's Staff, is relieved from duty with that officer, and ordered to report to Gen. McClellan.

Col. Hayes Van Rensselaer, Inspector-General United States Army, has been ordered to report for duty to Gen. Wright of Cincinnati, Ohio.

NAVAL ORDERS.

Acting-Master F. A. Harris has been ordered to the command of the Stepping Stones.

Acting Assistant-Paymaster E. N. Hall, and Acting Assistant-Surgeon Geo. J. Swan, have been ordered to the steamer Huntsville.

CORRECTION.

The following sentence contained in the correspondence of a leading journal was erroneously [illegible] to the [illegible] of Mr. Associated Press: "It is reported that in consequence of these changes in the cabinet Secretary Seward and A. G. Curtin will resign."

Board of Councilmen.

THE COMMON COUNCIL BOUNTY—AFTER THE GAS COMPANIES—EXTENDING THE 8TH AVENUE RAILROAD—PAVING HUDSON STREET WITH BELGIAN PAVEMENT—COMPTROLLER'S REPORT.

At the meeting of the Board last evening, Councilman Stevenson offered a resolution providing that the bounty of fifty dollars recently offered by the Common Council, be paid to those who enlisted on the day when the Mayor's proclamation was issued.

Councilman Jones offered a resolution providing that the Counsel to the Corporation prepare the necessary papers to make a transfer of the New-York, Manhattan and Harlem Gas Light Companies to the City, in compliance with the provisions of their charters, on account of the propositions to charge upon gas consumers the tax levied by the Government to sustain the expenses of the war.

The resolution was amended by striking out the Harlem Gas Light Company, and then adopted.

A report of the Committee on Railroads was adopted directing the Eighth-avenue Railroad Company to extend their track to Eighty-second-street.

A report in favor of paving Hudson-street from Chambers to Eighth-avenue with trap block pavement, with the exception of the portions used by the railroad companies, was adopted.

The following are some interesting figures from the Comptroller's Report, which was submitted for the year 1861, of which 5,000 copies were ordered printed:

Balance on hand Dec. 31, 1860	$5,435,000 07
Receipts during 1861	15,098,098 14
Total	$20,131,704 49
Amount of payments 1861	17,332,249 43
Balance remaining in the Treasury Dec. 31, 1861	$2,799,552 38

The amount of the General Levy for 1861 was as follows:

State and County purposes	$4,914,336 82
City purposes	6,713,293 40
Total	$11,627,632 22

The following items were comprised in the expenditures on City Account, for which warrants were drawn, executed and duly registered in 1861:

For the quarters ending	Common Co'ncil and Board of Health.	Board of Education.	Department of Public Charities & Corr'n.	Board of Comm'ners of Central Park.
March 31	$421,663 [illegible]	$156,662 [illegible]	$350,000 [illegible]	.....
June 30	1,377,827 [illegible]	638,[illegible]	300,000 [illegible]	$27,[illegible]
Sept. 30	921,[illegible]	914,[illegible]	120,000 [illegible]	25,[illegible]
Dec. 31	1,[illegible]	450,[illegible]	48,315 [illegible]	56,[illegible]
Totals	$4,[illegible]	$2,[illegible]	$[illegible]	$114,000 00

The amounts received for licenses in 1860 and 1861 was $76,310, which sum was paid by the Excise Commissioners to the County Treasurer.

The following is an interesting table of taxes on non-residents:

Year.	Valuation.	Amount of Tax.
1855	$14,491,590	$174,787 46
1856	16,501,263	197,954 70
1857	17,257,066	206,125 48
1858	12,034,592	196,200 70
1859	14,681,402	202,211 61
1860	15,121,103	250,287 94
1861	13,807,776	276,897 55

Of these taxes, only about three-fourths of the amounts assessed are ever realized, although the valuation of property forms part of the aggregate amount upon which the State taxes are apportioned, and are required to be paid by this County.

The Board took up the patriotic resolutions adopted by the Board of Aldermen, at the suggestion of Aldermen Boole, Aug. 4, and amended them by striking out the plan for a recruiting office, and the proposed additional bounty, (the latter having already passed in another form,) and adopted the remainder. The resolution will be found in the official report in another column.

State Politics.

Valacia, Sunday, Sept. 7.

Wm. G. Mandeville, of Stuyvesant, has been appointed Delegate, and Jacob P. Miller, of Kinderhook, Alternate, from the Second Assembly District of this county, to the Democratic State Convention.

Health or Sickness.

CHOOSE BETWEEN THE TWO

MEANS OF PREVENTING SICKNESS.

INVIGORATE THE STOMACH,

KEEP THE SYSTEM IN GOOD WORKING ORDER.

THE GREAT SAFEGUARD AND ANTIDOTE AGAINST FOUL AIR AND EPIDEMIC DISEASES.

SUPERIORITY OF HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS OVER EVERY OTHER TONIC AND STIMULANT.

UNANSWERABLE REASONS WHY IT SHOULD BE PREFERRED TO ALL OTHERS.

The man who should knowingly risk his life by stationing himself under a tottering wall, that might at any moment fall and crush him, would be deemed foolhardy; but no less rash and inconsiderate are those who, living in a country and a climate where epidemics prevail, neglect the precautions which would protect them against their attacks. All physicians admit that the best safeguard against disease, and indeed the first and most essential condition of health, is sound digestion. Without it the frame is imperfectly nourished and not in a condition to resist frequent and violent changes of temperature to which all parts of the United States, and still less able to encounter that malaria or disease-mist which rises from the soil in unhealthy localities.

The idea of fortifying the system against epidemics and other disorders, by administering powerful purges at particular seasons, is so unphilosophical and absurd, that it seems wonderful it should ever have been entertained. And yet, even at this day, is it held to be "good practice" by some medical men. To relax the body violently is simply to open the door to disease and invite it to enter. An enfeebled stomach and open pores—and these are the immediate and certain consequences of drastic purgation—are positive baits for all epidemics, and, in fact, render the system an easy prey to any prevalent distemper. The one great object should be to keep the internal organs in perfect fighting order, so that they may be able to combat and overcome those deleterious influences of seasons, soil and climate, &c., to which, if debilitated and disordered, they are almost sure to succumb. The stomach should digest perfectly the food which the exercise of a good appetite brings in contact with its solvent juices; the liver should do its whole duty in tempering the blood and regulating the bowels by a free flow of bile; the bowels should perform their functions with the punctuality of clockwork; and the circulation should be uniform and vigorous. If the physique can be brought into this desirable condition, there is little to fear from any ordinary or even extraordinary causes of disease.

HOW CAN THIS BE DONE?

By what potent life-and-strength-sustaining agent can the frame be brought into such a condition, and maintained in it continuously, without any letting down or reaction? The answer is that this is not a matter of opinion or speculation, but of fact and experience. The thing has been done. It is now being done in innumerable cases. The great recuperating agent by which it is accomplished is the best and safest tonic and alterative in existence.

There are other medicinal stimulants in the market of a different kind. A legion of them has arisen and passed into oblivion during the time that have been advancing in popularity with unprecedented swiftness, both at home and abroad. Lord Byron, speaking of bitters, says that

"Every year and month brings forth a new one,
Till, after cloying the gazettes with cant,
The age discovers that he is not the true one."

The same may be said of thousands of advertised "panaceas." A few "puffs" and all is over. They "die and make no sign." The cause of their decline and fall may be given in a few words. They are warranted to perform miracles, and effect nothing. Sometimes, indeed, they do infinite mischief; and this has been particularly the case with fiery and impure medicated stimulants.

No miraculous powers are claimed for

HOSTETTER'S BITTERS,

nor is there any mystery about the causes of its efficacy. Its stimulative basis has this especial merit—it is the purest spirit manufactured in the world. This fact has been demonstrated by chemical tests, and is not doubted in any quarter. The manufactory of the preparation is at Pittsburgh, the centre of the great rye region of this country. The basis of the Bitters is the essence of Rye, which had been proved by experiment to be the most wholesome diffusive stimulant known, and has long been used in hospitals under the name of Monongahela whiskey, in preference to the same kind of spirit. But the Monongahela spirit, superior as it is, undergoes a peculiar purifying process, by means of which every corrosive and fiery element is discharged before it begins to take the form of

HOSTETTER'S BITTERS.

And it is the vegetable tonics with which this rectified fluid is saturated, that impart to the article so small portion of its extraordinary preventive and curative powers. These vegetable compounds in fact modify the stimulating properties of the principal ingredient, so that the Bitters may truly be said to be balsamic and soothing in their operation. The preparation strengthens the stomach without exciting the nerves, and its effect upon the pulse, unlike that of ordinary stimuli, is to calm and regulate, instead of fluttering and disordering it. If a medicine really answers the desired purpose, its taste is a secondary consideration, but it may be well to mention that one of the recommendations of

HOSTETTER'S BITTERS

IS PALATABILITY.

To suppose that an article so popular, and therefore profitable, could remain uncounterfeited, would be to credit human nature with more honesty than it deserves. The proprietors have been harrassed by piratical imitators for several years, and have obtained injunctions against counterfeiters in between twenty and thirty cases. It is hoped that the notorious traders upon the reputation of

have been pretty effectually disposed of, and that the public have been sufficiently warned against their tricks to prevent, in future, the purchase of their deleterious compounds.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THACKERAY'S PHILIP.

DR. HOOKER'S FIRST BOOK IN CHEMISTRY.

HARPER & BROTHERS,
FRANKLIN-SQUARE, NEW-YORK,
PUBLISH THIS DAY

THE ADVENTURES OF PHILIP ON HIS WAY THROUGH THE WORLD; SHOWING WHO ROBBED HIM, WHO HELPED HIM, AND WHO PASSED HIM BY. By W. M. THACKERAY, Author of "Vanity Fair," "The Newcomes," "The Virginians," "Pendennis," "The English Humorists of the Eighteenth Century," "The Four Georges," &c., &c., &c. With Illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $1 50.

From the John Bull.

We very much prefer the story in its continuous shape, and we think that "Philip" will prove to be one of the works by which Mr. Thackeray will be best known to posterity.

The same posterity will have in Mr. Thackeray's work a rare memorial of us and of our habits, supposing indeed that the coming generations will take any interest in us. There are certainly as much vivid and veritable pictures of our actual life and manners as those which he has drawn, and we doubt whether any of the gentlemen which have gone before us have been so immortal to the life. Thackeray is essentially a painter of manners, and he paints them, too, from a moralist's point of view. Goldsmith, Smollett, and Fielding, all had purposes of fancy in view to which they subordinated the happy reality which they possessed of setting forth the manners and habits of their time. Thackeray, a man thoroughly and intensely belonging to his own epoch, familiar with all its habits and ideas, conversant with all its haunts, and jotting heartily in the humor of its ungraded and ungirt movements, has, nevertheless, the power of dissecting all the complex social machinery in which he moves, as keenly as Diogenes himself, looking out on the world from his tub.

FIRST BOOK IN CHEMISTRY. For the Use of Schools and Families. By Worthington Hooker, M. D., Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College, and Author of "The Child's Book of Nature," "Natural History," &c. Illustrated by Engravings. Square 4to. Cloth, 50 cents.

This is intended to follow the "Child's Book of Nature," and is very much in the same style as that popular school and family book. So clearly are all the points elucidated, and so largely are the illustrations of them drawn from common, every-day phenomena, that any child of twelve years of age, of ordinary capacity and attainments, will not only comprehend the book fully, but will be greatly interested in the study. The book is equally calculated to interest and instruct any adult who is not familiar with the subject of chemistry, and, therefore, is fitted for the use of the family as well as the school.

From Rev. B. G. Northrop, Superintendent of Public Schools in Connecticut.

I am highly pleased with Dr. Hooker's "First Book in Chemistry." The illustrations are excellent; the style is simple, and free from technicalities, making the leading facts and principles of the science clear to the comprehension of the juvenile mind. But the peculiar charm of this book, like that of the others in Dr. Hooker's excellent series, is its adaptation to excite the curiosity of children, and early foster a love of science, and gratify the love of knowledge thus excited. It is well fitted for home reading, and will be read by thoughtful and observing children with all the interest of a "story book."

From J. D. Philbrick, Esq., Superintendent of Public Schools in Boston.

It is an admirable work, both in plan and execution, and I shall take great pleasure in recommending its use as I have opportunity.

From the Religious Herald.

This is an book on chemistry for beginners, which in our judgment can compare with it.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain in recent cases; cures without injury to the system, all other remedies fail; cures without disgust or vexation in the minds of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less time six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury; but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb, unless his remedy be used. This is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians in regard to some private patient, who has exhausted the skill of others, and who, after a few days, will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it; and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 2 Division-st., near Eldridge. Pamphlets, 100 pages, 10 colored illustrations. These work out.

The steamship Australasian, from Liverpool on the 20th, via Queenstown on the 21st of August, arrived off Cape Race at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning. She was boarded by the News Yacht, and a synopsis of her news was obtained, which in two days later than that per the Norwegian, which passed Cape Race Sept. 4.

The steamship Arctic, from Boston, arrived at Liverpool on the 20th of August.

The steamer City of Manchester, from New-York, also arrived at Liverpool on the 20th of August.

The Norwegian has 414 passengers. She reports having experienced strong head winds during the entire passage, and passing on the 31st of August, the steamship Jura, on her way to Liverpool.

The steamship Bohemian, from Quebec, arrived at Liverpool on the 20th of August.

The Federal gunboat Tuscarora left Plymouth on the evening of the 27th of August. It was said that her destination was Cadiz.

Lord PALMERSTON, in a speech at Melbourne, referred to the Trent affair, which, he said, was settled in a manner consistent with the honor, principles and dignity of both England and America. America could not have refused the satisfaction demanded without departing from those principles she has herself maintained, and considered essential to her own interests as a nation. There was, consequently, no triumph on either side. The only triumph was the triumph of truth and justice, which each side was equally interested in maintaining.

The London Times reiterates its arguments that the North cannot conquer the South, and says that the time for compromise of some kind has arrived, and that the worst settlement of the dispute cannot be so fatal as the continuance of the war.

The Times then draws an analogy between the opposition of England during the Revolutionary War, and the present position of the North, and says it is time the North followed the example of England.

The Army and Navy Gazette describes Gen. McClellan's campaign as the most signal failure seen in this century.

Lord BROUGHAM had made a speech urging the necessity of absolute neutrality and non-intervention in every sense of the word as the only security for the peace of England and the best hope of securing the end of the unhappy quarrel.

The Liverpool Post draws attention to Secretary SEWARD's late circular to encourage emigrants, and urges the distressed operatives of Lancashire and the Irish poor to follow Mr. SEWARD's advice and emigrate.

The London financial correspondent of the Manchester Guardian writes as follows:

"It is stated that Messrs. BARING BROTHERS have received instructions from the State of Maryland to deduct the American income tax of three per cent., as well as the ordinary English income tax, from the coupons first due in London on Maryland Sterling Bonds; also that the same course has been taken on the Sterling Debentures of the Michigan Central Railway. This would be sufficient, if anything were wanted, to complete the disfavor in which American securities are now held."

The London Times draws attention to a letter from a respectable legal firm of London, Messrs. PHILLIPS & SON, who represent a client that has just made a discovery, by means of which the distress for cotton may be relieved without delay, by supplying the manufacturers with raw material to any extent. His inventions and plant, which are of the simplest and most unexpensive character, he desires to have submitted to gentlemen of scientific acquirements and unquestionable position, upon whose judgment the public may rely for unbiassed report.

The English journals anxiously canvass the state of affairs in Italy.

The London Daily News urges that the Emperor NAPOLEON cannot be allowed to assume exclusive control in Italian affairs, and urges the British Government to speak out.

There were vague rumors that England had protested against any French occupation of Neapolitan territory, and that England even threatened a corresponding movement in Sicily, if France resorted to such a step.

The Morning Post says that the English and French Cabinets are quite in the dark in regard to the movements of GARIBALDI, and urge that if GARIBALDI be a rebel and conspirator he has been encouraged by the Italian Government and people, from the King downward.

The London Daily News defends GARIBALDI, who it contends, does not rebel against his country and his King, but against foreign domination—against holding the rightful capital of Italy under false pretences.

The London Times points out the evils which must ensue if GARIBALDI persevers in his designs against Rome.

The Emperor NAPOLEON presided at an important Cabinet Council, on the 26th of August, on Italian affairs. Very important matters, it is said, were discussed.

A French squadron has been sent to Naples, and an English squadron, it is said, has also been ordered there.

The Paris Bourse was firmer on the 30th of August, the Rentes closing at 68c. 15c.

The Paris Bourse, on the 29th of August, was much unsettled after the news of the landing of GARIBALDI in Calabria. The Rentes fell more than one and a half whole, closing at 68c.

The Emperor NAPOLEON had left the Chalons Camp for Biarritz, accompanied by the Duke of Magenta.

The latest advices from Turin report that GARIBALDI and his volunteers continued their march from Reggio pursued by a column of Bersaglieri.

There had been no collision with GARIBALDI's forces and the royal troops since the trifling one reported by the Messagerie.

A proclamation issued by GARIBALDI from Catania, exciting the people to insurrection, had produced great excitement in his favor at Genoa and Florence, but some collision had taken place between the Neapolitan and the people.

GARIBALDI had left Messina, and was proceeding to Upper Reggio. He is said to have succeeded in his enterprise with small loss. The Neapolitan troops numbers of royal troops have gone over to the Garibaldi side, and generally speaking, all ranks are disaffected, and many regiments have mutinied, and refused to march against GARIBALDI.

The Italian fleet was cruising in the Straits, out hoping for communication with Sicily.

Gen. CLARKE had proclaimed in Palermo.

The Mazzinian party had attempted to get up a demonstration at Messina in favor of GARIBALDI, but it was put down.

The latest official news in the Turin Gazette represents that the news from the Neapolitan provinces is satisfactory. The "state of siege" was generally well received by the people there.

Gen. LA MARMORA had issued a strong proclamation against GARIBALDI, prohibiting the exportation and retention of arms.

The replies of Austria and Prussia to the Danish note of the 12th of March, on the Schleswig-Holstein question, had reached the Danish Cabinet. Both Austria and Prussia are very excessive in their demands, particularly Prussia.

The Calcutta mails of July 22, and Hong Kong mails of July 12, had arrived in England.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday Evening, Aug. 20, 1859.

The steamship Arabia arrived here at three o'clock this afternoon.

LONDON, Aug. 20—P. M.

The Times of to-day has an article on the extraordinary position of the Democratic party in America. It says that they are fighting in a cause for which they feel the most boundless devotion, but at the same time in behalf of a policy and a party which they detest. It regards Mr. VALLANDIGHAM's recent speech as an expression of the feeling of the Democrats, and thinks their demonstration in every way important, as it serves to show that in addition to other difficulties, President LINCOLN will have to struggle against the legitimate effects of the war—a violent reaction against his own army and arbitrary acts.

VERY LATEST VIA QUEENSTOWN.

PARIS, Saturday, Aug. 20—Noon.

A telegram just received in this city states that GARIBALDI has been defeated, wounded and captured.

LONDON, Sunday, Aug. 21.

The Monitor says that the insurrection which threatened to compromise the destinies of Italy has terminated.

GARIBALDI, after a very sharp contest, was compelled to surrender.

An Italian frigate was immediately ordered to convey him to Spezzia.

The blockade of the Italian coast is ordered to be raised.

PARIS, Sunday, Sept. 21.

The capture of GARIBALDI is fully confirmed.

LETTER FROM PARSON BROWNLOW.

To the Governors of the Loyal States.

GENTLEMEN: I do not wish to figure as "a busybody in other men's matters," but feeling and knowing that the crisis of our national affairs is now upon us, and believing that the next sixty days will determine the question whether we are to maintain the supremacy of the Government, or whether the rebellion is to prevail—(I have a personal acquaintance with many of you—Govs. Curtin, Morton, Tod, Morgan, Buckingham, Andrew, and others—and I bear testimony that you have done much, and done it well, wisely, and in due time, to promote the best interests of our country in this the day of her trial; much remains to be done; and you, gentlemen, representing more than twenty States, have it in your power to do more than any other class of men)—let me impress upon your minds the alarming fact that the rebels have now more men in the field, and in camps of instruction than we have—having brought all their white men into requisition, and having made Slavery an element of strength by retaining the slaves upon their plantations to raise supplies for their armies. Let me further impress upon your minds the startling fact that the rebel advances are simultaneous all over the country, and exhibit system and concert of action, with a zeal and talent displayed in the execution of their plans worthy of a better cause than that in which they are engaged. New-Orleans, Memphis, Nashville, Louisville, Cincinnati, Washington, Baltimore, Harrisburgh, and Philadelphia, are all threatened by an enemy that shows prodigious activity, talents and strength. Indeed, they have us now where they had us thirteen months ago, with this addition, that they have invaded Maryland and Ohio. If they march upon us, and their daring plans are not properly met and most signally defeated, it will be our fault.

Now, I propose that you, as Governors of the loyal States, meet at some convenient point, without delay, and, as the representatives of your people, address your counsels, in unmistakable terms, to the civil and military authorities of the United States. I will not say what you shall tell them, but I will, with all due deference to your superior abilities, suggest a few points that you might make, and forcibly impress upon the minds of our authorities:

First—Urge the Government to draft, without delay, a half million of men, in addition to the force already in the field and in camps of instruction. And, upon the score of economy, apprise the Government of the fact that it will require less money to furnish, equip and sustain a million for two years.

Second—Enter your protest against every other Brigadier and Major-General in our army being a candidate for the Presidency during the existence of this war, and, as a consequence, shaping his course in that direction.

Third—Enter your most solemn protest against one-half of the members of the Cabinet looking to the Presidency, and shaping their conduct of the war accordingly.

Fourth—Call upon the President, whose honesty and patriotism I do not question, to reorganize his Cabinet and the army, and to place men at the heads of both who will not think it sin to kill all leading rebels without hurting them!

Fifth—Advise the civil and military authorities of the country, and the politicians, to cease this war upon the everlasting "nigger," until we conquer their white masters, and arrest the onward march of their desperate and arrogant owners. Meanwhile, let the negroes be seized upon and urged in every way to crush out this infernal rebellion!

Sixth—Advise your Senators and Representatives in Congress, and the members of your State Legislatures, as well as the people, to cease to make efforts to revive and reorganize old political parties, and to organize our new party, to be known as the UNCONDITIONAL UNION PARTY OF AMERICA.

Seventh—Let the Government and the army know what they seem never to have learned—that is to say, that the rebels are a vain, fighting with a desperation and with nerve surpassed by any people on earth; while we, who have a noble army of brave men, with money, credit, all else necessary, and truth on our side, are divided and distracted, while we are temporizing traitors and traitors in our midst!

Impressed with the idea that I may have spoken over my ship of State in some in a heavy sea, and that at no period since the rebellion broke out has so despondency fallen upon the hearts of loyal citizens as at present!

I would, gentlemen, start a new paper at once, at some eligible point, and urge all these considerations, and more, upon the minds of the loyal-hearted men of the country, but for two good and sufficient reasons. First, I should be arrested by the United States authorities for stating facts, opposing follies, and declaring the honest convictions of my mind. And next, such is the rapid advance of the rebel forces, that I should expect them to crush out my paper, as they did in Tennessee, on the 25th of October last. I may be imprisoned for writing this article. I am not concerned about that. I suffered imprisonment and the confiscation of all I had, on the other side of the fence—adhering to the truth, and I am ready to do it again here for the same offence. If this rebellion is not put down I have nothing to live for, and would as soon die in prison as elsewhere.

I improved the last Sabbath by preaching in the open air, to the Philadelphia Corn Exchange Regiment, a noble set of men, equipped by a noble band of patriots. I improve this Sabbath, Sept. 7, by writing this address to the Governors of the loyal States.

W. G. BROWNLOW.

MOVEMENTS OF THE MILITARY.

Departure of Troops.

THE THIRTY-SEVENTH MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEERS.

Yesterday two New-England regiments followed close upon the heels of the thousands of patriots who, last week and during the earlier hours of this, went "on to Washington."

The Thirty-seventh Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers, from Berkshire County, of that noble State, left Pittsfield on Sunday afternoon, and went to Hudson by the Western Railway. At that point they took the steamboat Oregon, once the finest of all the North River palaces, and reached the dock at Jersey City, yesterday, at 6 o'clock in the morning.

The rank and file—one thousand in number—were a superb physical display. Mainly taken from the farming districts in that mountainous region, they presented lines of bronzed faces, bright eyes and stalwart frames fit for war, and destined, we trust, for active duty rather than the devastations of the swamp.

The following named officers are in command:

Colonel—OLIVER EDWARDS, Springfield.

Lieutenant-Colonel—Alonzo E. Goodrich, Pittsfield.

Major—Geo. L. Montague, South Hadley.

Adjutant—Thomas G. Colt, Pittsfield.

Quartermaster—Daniel J. Dodge, Pittsfield.

Surgeon—Charles Crehore, Boston.

Assistant Surgeons—T. C. Groton, Springfield; J. J. Ellis, Boston.

Chaplain—F. C. Morse, Blanford.

Company A—Captain, J. F. Reilley; First Lieutenant, E. S. Blakmer; Second Lieutenant, C. S. Weelman, Chicopee.

Company B—Captain F. W. Pease, Lee; First Lieutenant, T. F. Plunket, Pittsfield; Third Lieutenant, B. C. Morgan, Lee.

Company C—Captain E. Hunther, Great Barrington; First Lieutenant, R. F. Snelder, Amherst; Second Lieutenant, vacant.

Company D—Captain A. Thayer, Wilbraham; First Lieutenant, Charles S. Edwards, Great Barrington; Second Lieutenant, George H. Hyde, Lee.

Company E—Captain A. Hopkins, Wilbraham; First Lieutenant, J. Chapman, Auburn; Second Lieutenant, W. P. Smith, Pittsfield.

Company F—Captain E. A. Allen, Springfield; First Lieutenant, W. W. Tyler; Second Lieutenant, S. Lockwood, Amherst.

Company G—Captain, M. Mooney; 1st Lieut. F. W. Bliss; 2d Lieut. E. Briaguna, Northampton.

Company H—Captain, R. L. Hyde; 1st Lieut. J. H. Loomis, Amherst; 2d Lieut. A. L. Burke, Boston.

Company I—Captain, H. Doundy; 1st Lieut. M. Fuller; 2d Lieut. Charles Phillips, Springfield.

Company K—Captain F. Lee; 1st Lieut. J. R. Motley; 2d Lieut. Geo. B. Chandly, Chicopee.

Col. EDWARDS, a young man of 27 years of age, has served since the opening of the campaign, on the staff of Gen. COUCH, and is represented to be a person of rare ability, uniting capacity of mind with physical endurance and great executive ability.

His men are well supplied with warm blankets, good Springfield muskets, and all the comforts which experience shows can safely be taken to the camp. The regiment left at one o'clock by the Central railway for Washington.

THE ELEVENTH VERMONT.

Vermont does her share. We have already chronicled several of her passing regiments, and now add to her list the name of the Eleventh Volunteers. This regiment left its camp at Brattleboro' on Sunday, reached Jersey City by means of the steamboat Continental from New-Haven, and marched onward yesterday afternoon via the Jersey Central Railway.

The regiment contains the maximum number of men—and men, too, deserving the name—mostly residents of that State, farmers and sons of farmers. There are, however, quite a number of Canadians, who are anxious to do a little something for the cause. The prominent officers of the regiment—the full list has been already published—are Col. JAMES WARNER, Lieut.-Col. J. BENSON, Adjt.—BURROWS.

The men are well armed, warmly clad, and thoroughly provided by the Government with all the external necessaries for the conflict, while with the inner spirit the New-England parents who bore and reared them, provided them years ago. The regiment left for the National Capitol yesterday afternoon by the Central railway.

DEPARTURE OF SIGEL'S RECRUITS.

Yesterday some 400 recruits for the Seventh, Twenty-ninth, Thirty-ninth, Twentieth and Fifty-fourth Regiments New-York Volunteers, now serving under Gen. SIGEL, left for Washington. At 3 o'clock the Bowery, in the vicinity of the Sigel Headquarters, was crowded with the friends of the departing, and scenes most enthusiastic and Teutonically demonstrative ensued. At 3½ o'clock the various detachments arrived at the general rendezvous, and Lieut.-Col. SCHWARZ, of the Garibaldi Guard, took command, and, assisted by Maj. MEYER, of the Turner Rifles, formed them into line, right resting on Grand-street. The Turner Verein of this City, Brooklyn and Williamsburgh, with their splendid banner and fine drum corps, soon arrived on the ground, and, under command of Turner WARE MEYER, marched to the right of the line, where a fine brass band awaited their arrival.

The Astor House Committee, which consists of Consuls VON HEINE and JANSEN, and Messrs. BOHNAN, HALLE, DRESSLER, E. BAHRS, SACKERDONEY, WEHNDONCK, HAUBERT, WEDEMEULLER, and others, were on the ground, and took their positions in time, and their presence was the occasion of much kindly feeling.

All being ready, the procession moved in the following

ORDER.

Detachment of Police from the Sixth Precinct.
Lieut.-Col. SCHWARZ and Major MEYER.
The Turner Drum Corps and Band.
Private Citizens.
The Turners.
Color-bearers with American and German flags.
The Sigel Committee, with Captains
KEFFERIL and CARL SIGEL, (brothers of the General.)
The recruits, 300 in number.

The line of march was through Chatham-street to Park-row, to Broadway, to Pier No. 1, at which point they embarked on the Perth Amboy steamboat. The men were cheered and applauded, and went off in fine spirits, anxious to fight mit SIGEL.

SUPERINTENDENT KENNEDY PREVENTING ENLISTMENTS.

A meeting of working men was held in front of the City Hall on Sunday, for the purpose of encouraging enlistments, at which Mr. E. FALCONER, the well-known temperance orator, was one of the speakers. In the midst of the speaking, and after several recruits had been obtained for the Corcoran Brigade, a dispatch was received from Police Headquarters, ordering the arrest of Mr. FALCONER and the dispersion of the meeting. FALCONER was, accordingly, arrested and taken to the Second Ward Station, and after remaining there for an hour or more, another dispatch was received, to the effect that FALCONER might be permitted to continue his speaking, provided he would retire to the rear of the City Hall. This FALCONER peremptorily refused to do, contending that if he had a right to speak in the rear of the Hall, he had just as good a right to speak in front. In view of the reasonableness of this proposition, or for some other cause, the police authorities came to the conclusion to release the prisoner, and he returned to the City Hall, where he resumed his speech, and procured several more recruits. FALCONER has three sons in the army, and expresses his willingness to go himself, and he is naturally somewhat anxious to know on what grounds of right or patriotism he was arrested, and whether the Superintendent of Police, who has caused the arrest of so many persons for alleged attempts to prevent enlistments, is himself "exempt."

THE ONE HUNDRED AND NINETEENTH REGIMENT.

There has been some confusion in the statements regarding the departure of the One Hundred and Nineteenth Regiment, Col. ELIAS PHISSER. It left this City on Saturday morning on the steamer Red Jacket, at the foot of Forty-fifth-street, for Elizabethport. Thence it went to Harrisburgh, where it is now in camp. A Sergeant and Lieutenant were left in this City to receive recruits, who may apply at Camp Pelsner, Turtle Bay Park, or at No. 109 East Houston-street.

Military Movements in the City.

AN OFFICIAL IMBROGLIO.

There is a disagreement of doctors in official circles. Certain medical men are standing on some very sharp points of etiquette, much to their own inconvenience and still more to the detriment of the public service. The difficulty has arisen in this wise: When the Governor issued his proclamation, offering on behalf of the State to any volunteer an additional bounty of $50, he at the same time appointed special examining and inspecting officers, whose duty it should be to satisfy himself that the recruits were healthy and able-bodied. He appointed two inspecting officers for the Army, one Dr. THOMSON, whose qualifications of health and physical manhood from whom no recruit could claim, at, at any rate, obtain his money. But, before passing the ordeal of inspection from Dr. THOMSON, he recruit had to be examined and passed by other doctors appointed by the War Department, to see that noble but able-bodied men received the bounty offered by the United States. It would naturally be thought, that one inspection by a competent medical man would be sufficient for all useful purposes; but it seems there is a sort of irreconcilable conflict between the respective authorities of State and nation, and that their respective dignities demanded the exercise of separate and independent jurisdiction. Heretofore, this condition of affairs has been productive of incipient trouble; but actual conflict was avoided up to yesterday, when things came to a crisis, the doctors openly quarrelled and the country had its consequence to suffer from the temporary stoppage of enlistments. Of course each casts the blame upon the other, and, of course also, there must be more or less of blame attaching to both. It seems that the United States Doctors pass the men first, whereupon they are sworn in by the mustering officer, and are, to all intents and purposes, regularly enlisted soldiers, beyond the chance of escape, and liable to punishment for desertion or mutiny if they revolt or run away. The only bounty they are so far entitled to, however, amounts to $20. To get the other bounties ($100 now—$50 State and $50 City)—they must satisfy the further critical judgment of Dr. THOMSON. Dr. THOMSON appears to be hard to please. Certificates signed by Dr. MOTT, Dr. GARDNER, or Dr. KEENAN, are not with him conclusive evidence of a recruit's fitness. He must see for himself, and is not to be deterred by feelings of professional courtesy from differing with the other Doctors in opinion. On several occasions he has thus differed with them, and declined to grant a certificate entitling the recruit to the State and City bounties. This is mortifying to the United States Surgeons; but is especially hard on the unfortunate recruits. Dr. THOMSON's rejection of him does not discharge him from the service; it only deprives him of $100. Very reasonably he feels himself swindled and outraged, and from that moment his mind is made up to desert. To remedy the matter, Col. REEVES, U. S. A., the chief mustering and disbursing officer here for the War Department, issued an order requiring recruits to pass through Dr. THOMSON's hands first, as his (Dr. THOMSON's) approval did not make soldiers of them, and no harm would follow if they were afterward rejected by the other doctors. This arrangement did not suit Dr. THOMSON, who issued a counter proclamation, refusing to have anything to do with recruits that had not been mustered into the United States service before they were brought to him. The result of all this bickering and antagonism is that, yesterday afternoon, no men could be passed at all. Both offices were crowded for hours with Captains and Lieutenants and the recruits they had been procuring; but, between the two orders, enlistments fell to the ground. It is a scandalous and objectionable piece of business altogether, and should somehow be settled very speedily. The country's emergency is too serious to permit of such consideration being shown to mere personal self-esteem or obstinacy. It is recruits that are wanted, and no one cares by whom they are inspected, so long as it is known that the duty is assigned to a capable medical man. Every one knows Dr. MOTT to be this, and few will be likely to attribute any fault in the premises to him.

THE UNITED STATES MUSTERING OFFICE.

Up till 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon recruiting was going along briskly, when the unfortunate difficulty above described took place between the United States doctors and State doctor, THOMSON. It is to be hoped the matter will be settled before this morning, and that recruits will again be enlisted as rapidly as within the past few days.

PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES.

The dead lock which occurred yesterday in Dr. THOMSON's office put a stop to the payment of bounties at a comparatively early hour, so that a smaller amount than usual was disbursed. The State bounty is no longer paid to recruits for new regiments, but these are still entitled to the City bounty of $50. This City bounty is promptly paid at the Comptroller's office to every recruit who bears a certificate of enrollment, or to the representative of such recruit. The Comptroller has already disbursed nearly $12,500 in this way. Recruits for regiments in the field continue to receive all the bounties—$20 from the United States, $50 from the State, and $50 from the City—$120 altogether.

QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE.

The immediate departure of so many regiments from the City has brought an immense pressure of business into the Quartermaster's office; but Gen. ARMYE and his aids are equal to the task imposed upon them. Here, too, matters would be considerably expedited if there were a better understanding between the State and the United States departments.

JUSTICE TO THE GALLANT SEVENTY-FIRST.

In the Governor's proclamation, published in yesterday's Times, thanking the National Guards of the State of New-York for their fidelity to duty, and alacrity in responding to their country's call for troops, mention of the Seventy-first Regiment was accidentally not made, owing, simply, to a telegraphic omission. The Seventy-first has, on all occasions, behaved nobly.

TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT, N. Y. S. M.

We call the attention of the members of this regiment to the notice of their Major, in another column.

HOME GUARDS FOR DRILL AND DEFENCE.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Had the people of Cincinnati and other towns been prepared by a well organized force of Home Guards, much of their fear and consternation would have been avoided. It is high time that all who are not drafted or likely to be so, should form themselves into companies for drill and exercise, so as to be ready for any contingency. There are thousands of able-bodied men over 45, who could thus be a tower of defence in their respective cities, and afford protection in case of invasion. There are many reasons why this step should be taken at once all over the Union. The peril of invasion or intervention would be much decreased if it were known that the whole nation was in a posture of defence. Yours truly,

T. B.

Progress of Gen. Corcoran's Brigade.

Recruiting for this Brigade is coming on finely, nearly all of the regiments attached to it having nearly their full complement of men. Yesterday an order was issued by the War Department commanding Col. WM. ALLEN to report to Gen. CORCORAN, and attach his regiment, the Stanton Legion, to the Corcoran Brigade. All of the men belonging to the Sixty-ninth have volunteered for the war. Col. BIGLEY, however, will not command it, having resigned, and Lieut.-Col. MURPHY has been appointed Colonel in his stead. The Twenty-fifth Regiment, (Albany,) Col. BEYAN, which has just returned from three months' term of service, has also been attached to Gen. CORCORAN's Brigade, and is now busily engaged in filling up its ranks to the maximum standard. The General now devotes his whole time to the raising of his Brigade, and will not attend any meeting, or transact any other business till it is completed. The following gentlemen have been appointed a Committee to receive subscriptions, collect moneys, and generally forward the recruiting interests of CORCORAN's Irish Legion: Judge Daly, Richard O'Gorman, John Savage, Capt. Kirker, J. B. Nicholson and Daniel Devlin.

War Meeting of Cortlandt-street Merchants—A Regiment to be Raised by Them.

At the Merchants' Hotel, in Cortlandt-street, a meeting was held, on Saturday last, by the merchants of that street. Mr. JONATHAN RAMSON was appointed Chairman, and Messrs. H. M. Boies, Benjamin G. Wash, Alfred S. Stowell, W. S. Bigelow, W. K. Wells and Abraham Quackenbush, Vice-Chairmen. Messrs. A. J. Morgan, L. Randall and W. H. Lyon acted as Secretaries. The subjoined resolutions were then offered and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the time has arrived when all loyal men, of whatever age or condition in life, who value the blessings of a free government, must arouse themselves and prepare to defend with their money, their arms and their lives, if need be, the Institutions of our country, under which we have enjoyed so many blessings, and put down the most gigantic, wicked and heartless band of traitors that ever disgraced humanity, who now seek to destroy the best government on the face of the earth.

Resolved, That we form ourselves into an organization, to be known as the Cortlandt-street National Guard, the object of which shall be to drill and discipline ourselves, that we may be ready at any moment to respond promptly to the call of our country for its defence.

Resolved, That when we adjourn it will be to meet at the Merchants' Hotel, on Thursday, at 5 o'clock P. M., to organize and elect officers for the Association.

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the Chair, to make such arrangements as shall be deemed necessary to carry out the wishes of the meeting.

Messrs. Albert S. Stowell, W. G. Schenck, W. H. Lyon, H. K. Wells and Thomas W. Coughlin were appointed the Committee, and will meet on Thursday next, for the transaction of business.

Speeches were then made by Gen. WILCOX, Rev. MATTHEW HALE SMITH, WILLIAM ALVAH BANCLEY, Rev. Mr. HAYDEN of Brooklyn, Mr. H. A. MORGAN and others. During the meeting DODWORTH's Band was present, and enlivened the scene by discoursing, occasionally, most excellent music.

At the same time another meeting was held at the Western Hotel, in Cortlandt-street, Mr. T. W. Covenant in the Chair, Messrs. Wells, Lamson and others addressed the meeting in a most patriotic and eloquent manner.

Fire in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Monday, Sept. 5.

D. S. Bennett's Elevator, situated on Buffalo Creek and Evans' Ship Canal, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. As near as we can learn the elevator contained about 60,000 bushels of corn, and 40,000 bushels of wheat. The building was valued at $20,000, and was insured for $25,000 in the following companies: Liverpool and London, $6,000; La Fayette of New-York, $1,000; Unity, of London, $10,000; Niagara, of New-York, $1,000; City Fire, of Hartford, $1,500; Phœnix, of Hartford, $1,500; Hartford, of Hartford, $1,500; Connecticut, $1,000; Providence and Washington, $1,500. The insurance on grain, as far as can be ascertained, is $50,000, in the following Companies: Ætna, of Hartford, $5,000; North America, $5,000; Commercial of Albany, $95,000—(the above on what belonged to Mr. D. F. JAYNE, of Canandaigua;) Atlantic of New-York, $4,000; Liverpool and London, $2,500; Beekman of New-York, $3,000; Excelsior, $2,000; Lorillard of New-York, $4,500; Market of New-York, $4,500; Commercial of New-York, $4,000; Mercantile, $4,000; Western of Buffalo, $10,000.

The Griffith Warehouse, on the opposite side of the slip, was also destroyed. Total loss about $100,000.
